Man says DeLuca hired him to kill

by DAVE IBATA

Frank DeLuca hired a cellmate at Cook County Jail to abduct and murder two witnesses who he said "could put him away for a long time," the would-be "hit man" testified Thursday.

Clifford X. Childs, 29, of Chicago, said DeLuca also bragged to him of his "perfect plan" in which he killed the Columbo family of Elk Grove Village.

DeLuca, in October 1976, said the two witnesses could destroy his "perfect plan" to murder the Columbos and escape conviction, "and he needed them killed," Childs said.

CHILDS SAID DeLuca told him the hit man "would have to be someone he could trust. He asked me if I could do the job."

Childs said he agreed to murder the witnesses only as a ploy to have DeLuca's ex-wife, Marilyn DeLuca, of 1521 Holtz, Addison, bail him out of jail. Childs then was facing trial on three charges of armed robbery and probation violation.

Childs testified at the murder trail of DeLuca, 39, and Patricia Columbo, 20. DeLuca and Miss Columbo are charged with the May 4, 1976 slayings of Miss Columbo's parents, Frank and Mary Columbo, and her brother, Michael, 13, of 55 E. Brantwood Dr., Elk Grove Village.

Miss Columbo Thursday broke into tears for the first time since the trail began, when a pathologist testified about his examination of Michael Columbo's body.

MISS COLUMBO, who had previously shown no emotion in court, wept when Robert J. Stein, chief medical examiner for Cook County, described the two bullet wounds and more than 90 stab wounds he found on Michael's body.

DeLuca allegedly wanted to have murdered two employes at the Walgreen Drug Store he managed at the Grove Mall Shopping Center, Elk Grove Village.

DeLuca May 5, 1976 confided how he murdered the Columbos to his assistant manager Hubert Green, 28, of Elk Grove Village; and Joy Heysek, 37, of Hoffman Estates, Green and Mrs. Heysek have testified.

Childs said DeLuca offered him $10,000 "front money," and another $10,000 after the murders. If the murders went down well, DeLuca allegedly told Childs he would give him a "bonus" of $20,000.

CHILDS DESCRIBED DeLuca's alleged plot to kill the witnesses:

DeLuca dictated to Childs descriptions of Green and Heysek, and a list of their activities. He also drew maps of the Elk Grove Mall, the apartment complex where Green lived, and Mrs. Green's neighborhood. Childs copied the maps. DeLuca then destroyed the originals.

DeLuca allegedly had Childs write the dosier in his own hands to prevent police from tracing it back to him.

DeLuca then ordered Childs that once he was released on bond, he should go to New York and purchase three .38-caliber pistols, a silencer, false identification and a bottle of chloroform.

CHILDS WOULD chose an opportune time for the hits. He then would rent or steal a van. "I was to use chloroform, knock 'em out, put 'em in

by MARK BALDWIN

If you are going to church again after a long absence, you may be part of a religious revival.

Several area clergymen Thursday said their churches are attended better now than they have been for several years because they say they are offering "what people are looking for."

Their observations confirm the findings of several Gallup polls released this week which show Americans attending church in greater numbers than they have in nearly two decades.

"We have experienced an interest not just in church activities but in Christianity in general," said the Rev. Robert O. Bartz, pastor of St. Peter Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights.

"THEY ARE JOINING because we are offering what they are looking for," Rev. Bartz said. His Missouri Synod congregation is the largest in the United States with 4,800 members.

Bartz said his church has received "about 450" new members in the past two or three years.

He said new churchgoers are searching for meaning in their lives. Most of them, he said, are turning to "fundamentalist" churches, which emphasize a personal relationship with Christ.

"People aren't as interested in solving the problem of world hunger as they are in finding the relevance of Christ to their own lives," Rev. Bartz said.

The Rev. Jim Summers, pastor of the Mount Prospect Bible Church, said his congregation is "the fastest growing in the Chicago area."

THE REV. SUMMERS said he fears much of the renewed interest in religion is a "revival of interest in things that don't matter.

"In a church that preaches Jesus Christ great things can happen," he said. "If they preach something else, people will leave."

The fundamentalist minister said he thinks renewed interest is "due to society. People are hungry and they're not being fed."

The Rev. William J. Buhrfeind of St. Raymond Roman Catholic Church in Mount Prospect said increased attendance is most pronounced among young people.

"We have a special program to attract high school and college students and young marrieds," he said.

REV. BUHRFEIND said his parish has about 2,600 families. He estimated "200 or 300" new families have joined the church in the six years he has been there.

Like the others, Rev. Buhrfeind attributed the upswing in religious activity to a "search for meaning."

He said many people have shown an interest in attending small Bible study classes.

"I think the thing people like most is being in small groups," he said. "This is different for the Catholic Church because everything has always been so big. When you have 1,400 people at a Mass, you can feel lost in the shuffle."

Rabbi Jay Karzen of the Maine Township Jewish Congregation in Des Plaines said attendance at his temple "has never been better."

"We're seeing a constant increase in religious observance," Rabbi Kar-

Tentative accord in taxi talks

Negotiators for Chicago's major cab companies and union cab drivers reached a tentative agreement Thursday night in an eight-hour bargaining session mediated by acting Mayor Michael Bilandic.

The tentative accord headed off a strike scheduled for today against Yellow and Checker cab companies — the city's largest cab firms.

Terms of the proposed pact were not released pending ratification by the union and the cab companies, but Bilandic told a City Hall news conference that the agreement would not increase cab fares.

Officials of the cab drivers' union — Seafarers International Union Local 777 — said union members would vote on the proposed contract within a week. Union Vice Pres. Earl Shepard said he expected members to routinely approve the agreement.

Spokesmen for Yellow and Checker cabs said the companies boards would vote on the proposed pact as soon as possible. The agreement will not affect Northwest suburban companies.

Moore innocent of jail beatings

Winsston Moore, former head of the Cook County Jail, was found innocent Thursday of charges stemming from the alleged beating of prisoners.

Cook County Circuit Court Judge James M. Bailey directed the innocent verdict, saying the prosecution, "hasn't even come close to providing the case and I am not about to ruin the lives of these defendants."

Five other defendants also were acquitted as a result of the judge's decision.

MOORE WAS charged with aggravated battery, official misconduct and perjury in connection with the alleged beating June 9, 1976, of inmates Freddy Martin and Tyrone Thompson. Thompson and Martin both testified during the trial.

Bailey said he "heard no evidence whatsoever that Freddy Martin was injured . . . not even a scintilla of evidence of serious injury to support the charges of aggravated battery."

He said he noted "inconsistencies in the testimony and weighed the testimony of Thompson and Martin. In fact, Tyrone Thompson is almost the only one who says he was beaten."

Attorneys for Moore and his codefendants had prepared charts showing discrepancies in the testimony of prosecution witnesses, which they used in requesting the directed acquittal.

Test scores more than numbers

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

When an administrator tells parents their child ranks in the 67th percentile on a standardized test, to most parents it's a meaningless number.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 this week released school-by-school scores from the Iowa Test of Basic Skills, with average composite scores ranging from the 34th to the 93rd percentile.

Here's what Dist. 59 testing coordinator William Harner says a child can or cannot do when he or she achieves a certain score.

If a student scores at the 50th percentile, it means that half the students in the country did better than he did and half worse.

TO SCORE AT the 50th percentile on the capitalization portion of the test, third graders have to know how to capitalize the following: the pronoun I; the first word in a sentence; names of persons, days, months and holidays; initials of persons and specific brand names, Harner said.

To score better than the 50th percentile, third graders also must know more difficult skills such as how to capitalize names of cities, states, countries, continents, rivers, oceans, streets and mountain ranges; titles of books and magazines; and the first word in a quotation.

Students aren't expected to know these things until the higher elementary grades.

On the punctuation portion of the language test, third graders must know how to use a period and a question mark at the end of a sentence to score at the 50th percentile.

They score higher if they also know how to use a period with name initials, how to separate month and year with a comma, how to use an apostrophe to form possessive nouns and how to use a colon to indicate clock time, Harner said.

The average third-grade language score in Dist. 59 ranged from a high of the 89th percentile at one school to a low of the 36th percentile at another school. Seven of the district's 16 elementary schools scored below the 50th percentile in third-grade language skills.

STRUCTURED around finding mistakes, the language portion of the test requires students to pick out the incorrectly spelled word out of four words and the line which has in-

Racist caldron set to boil over in Skokie

Nazis ready to march

by PAUL GORES

Nazi Party leader Frank Collin is expecting the worst when he and other members of the party march in predominantly-Jewish suburb of Skokie July 4, but he says he'll be ready for it.

"If they come close enough to lay a hand on us, I've instructed my men to try to kill them with their fists," Collin, 32, said.

Collin said he has been in physical confrontations with Jews before, and he enjoys it.

"TO TROUNCE THAT man — that's got to be one of the most enjoyable experiences that I can imagine," he said.

Collin said that barring another court injunction, the National Socialist Party will take its message to Skokie to celebrate Independence Day.

"It looks like July 4 is going ahead," Collin said. "They tried to stop us through every legal means but they couldn't do it. Now the media is inciting the people to come out and defeat us."

For that reason, Collin said, he expects bloodshed.

"I'd say quite a bit," he said with a smile, "and it's all going to come from them."

COLLIN SAID Nazis from around the country will be in Chicago for the Jews ready to stop them

There is a monument in Skokie to Januscz Korczak.

A stone, with a plaque, commemorating the martyr in Warsaw, Poland, who went to his death in the ovens of a Nazi concentration camp because he refused to abandon the orphans in his charge when the Nazis exterminated them in 1942.

Korczak's memory lives on in Skokie because one of his orphans, who escaped the gas chamber, founded a B'nai B'rith chapter here after the war — a chapter named the Korczak Lodge. Many of its members are among the estimated 7,000 survivors of the Holocaust who live in Skokie.

In a community where about half of the 70,000 residents are Jewish, there is a large faction that refuses to talk about the U.S. Supreme Court decision that will let the Nazis march in Skokie. The publicity, they think, will just play into the party's hands.

BUT THE SURVIVORS will talk.

"We are the ones that won't ignore," said Erna Gans, president of the Korczak Lodge and the only member of her immediate family to get out of Nazi Europe alive.

She paused, thinking, perhaps about her brother who died from a bullet which a playful Nazi meant for a few birds; her mother and brother who were discovered in hiding; her grand-

Hoffman hospital mulls chief hopeful

A Pompano Beach, Fla., man is the front runner for the top administrative position at the Hoffman Estates Community Hospital, it has been learned. He is Michael Focht, who has been head of the Cypress Community Hospital in Pompano Beach for the past two years. The hospital is a 160-bed facility operated by American Medicorp, the same Pennsylvania-based firm that is building the 312-bed hospital in Hoffman Estates. Medicorp officials are expected to announce their choice for a hospital administrator next week. Construction of the Hoffman Estates hospital began in May near Higgins and Barrington Roads. Completion is planned for summer of fall 1979.

Employers win rule in religion suit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled 7 to 2 Thursday that companies do not have to discriminate against some workers in an effort to meet the religious preferences of others.

Justice Byron White's majority opinion said federal civil rights law does not require abandonment of union seniority systems, nor does it require employers to bear more than a minimal cost, so that workers may have Saturday off for religious reasons.

"Without a clear and express indication from Congress, we cannot agree . . . that an agreed-upon seniority system must give way when necessary to accommodate religious observances," White wrote.

"IN THE ABSENCE of clear statutory language or legislative history to the contrary," he said, "we will not readily construe the statute to require an employer to discriminate against some employes in order to enable others to observe their Sabbath."

Dissenting Justices Thurgood Marshall and William Brennan saw the ruling as having a tragic impact on thousands of Americans "who could be forced to live on welfare as the price they must pay for worshipping their God."

"The ultimate tragedy is that despite Congress' best efforts one of this nation's pillars of strength — our hospitality to religious diversity — has been seriously eroded," they said.

SINCE 1972, federal civil rights law has required employers to make "reasonable accommodations" to workers' religious desires. Firings or refusals to hire for religious reasons must be justified on the basis of undue hardship to the business.

Numerous challenges have sprung up, mostly by persons who celebrate the sabbath on Saturday. Orthodox Jews, Seventh Day Adventists and members of the World Wide Church of God hold such beliefs.

FRANK COLLIN, 32, said he anticipates bloodshed when he eads members of the National Socialist (Nazi) Party into the largely-Jewish community of Skokie July 4. Collin and othe Nazis are planning strategy for the Independence Day demonstration in their headquarters in the South Side neighborhood near Marquette Park. "We wanted to take it right to the heart of the problem," collin said of the planned march.

the van, and shoot 'em in the head," Childs said.

Childs then would drive the van out of state, dig a grave, place the bodies within and pour lye over them to dissolve them.

Childs said Mrs. DeLuca, on Nov. 20, 1976, sent $3,420 by Western Union money orders to Childs. Mrs. DeLuca gave Childs the remaining $830 he needed to post $4,250 bail on a $42,500 bond, and Childs was freed Feb. 24, 1977, he said.

Mrs. DeLuca gave Childs $1,300 spending money and the keys to her ex-husband's car, Childs said.

CHILDS SAID HE appeared at a March 8, 1977 pretrial hearing on his robbery charges. After leaving court Childs was arrested by Cook County Sheriff's Police who had been tipped off to the murder solicitation by a jail informant.

Childs also testified how DeLuca bragged to him about his "perfect plan." While Childs was barred from mentioning Miss Columbo's alleged complicity in the killings, he made mention of an unnamed cohort who aided DeLuca.

He said DeLuca told him a meeting of "reconciliation" was set for the night of May 4, 1976. Before the meeting, DeLuca said he went shopping.

Between 10:30 and 11 p.m. that night, DeLuca returned to his Lombard apartment and called his Walgreen store to check the nightly receipts, Childs said DeLuca told him. DeLuca then drove to the Columbo home, Childs said DeLuca told him.

Frank Columbo answered the door of his home, DeLuca allegedly told Childs. Once inside, DeLuca said he shot Frank, Mary and Michael Columbo, Childs said.

Survivors of Holocaust remember Nazi threats parents who were gassed at Auschwitz; her father who simply disappeared. Then she repeated: "We don't ignore."

Mrs. Gans does not have a number tattooed on her arm. A strong teenager when the Germans took over her Polish hometown, she spent the war years in work camps and, in January 1945, walked out of a Russian-led procession of prisoners to freedom.

She does not shudder at the smell of something burning, because her work camps had no gas chambers to remind her of the odor of sizzling flesh.

BUT MRS. GANS does shudder at the thought of the Nazis coming to Skokie.

"The survivors of the Holocaust feel this is a here-we-go-again situation," she said in a voice still thick with a European accent. "They felt they left the Nazi pictures and the Nazi nightmare behind."

And, she said, verbally underlining her words, they fear the nightmare could come again.

"How (the Nazis) came to be in Germany is by perverting the laws of the free, democratic Weimar Republic," Mrs. Gans said. "Once they were in power, they changed the laws. Hitler came to power through the ballot box and then he figured he would use the laws of the land to get what he wanted. And this is why I'm afraid."

She is not ready to condemn the Supreme Court's decision because she hasn't read it, and based on the flurry of phone calls she got from Jewish activists Thursday, she said she believes the decision was not made on the basis of the First Amendment but on the grounds the village of Skokie could not ban the Nazi march indefinitely.

BUT SHE IS emphatic about the rights guaranteed in the First Amendment.

"As a survivor of the Holocaust, my gut feeling is that freedom of speech should not be used to incite others to genocide.

"I'm not taking (Nazi) freedoms away. He's coming here to take mine away. His GOAL is to KILL me — to kill Jews and to kill blacks.

"What he's advocating is a change in the Constitution which guarantees equal freedom. He's saying Jews and blacks shouldn't have that freedom. And that's the same Constitution he's using to say he wants HIS freedom!"

Mrs. Gans embraces the First Amendment like one of the 10 Commandments. But the First Amendment, she said, has boundaries — boundaries overstepped when there is a danger of inciting to riot.

Then she displays a copy of an Illinois Senate resolution endorsing the ordinances passed by the Village of Skokie to prevent the Nazis from marching in May — a march that Mrs. Gans herself took to the streets to protest.

"They're dangerous people to do business with, the Nazis. I can't balance the Nazis. I believe the law will. If I didn't believe that, we could have done away with them long ago."

Nazis expect 'worst' at march

National Socialist Congress July 4, and they will participate in the parade. "I'm anxious for it, I really am," Collin said. "I'll do whatever is meaningful."

Collin is planning the parade from the swastika-decorated Nazi headquarters at 2519 W. 71st St. in the South Side neighborhood near Marquette Park.

The literature, stickers and posters in the small, barely furnished building make it obvious what Collin stands for and what he stands against.

Like the founder of the Nazi Party, Adolph Hitler, he stands for racism. He is against any race except the white race, which he claims is "supreme."

He said he believes Jews are behind equal rights movements for women, blacks and gays. He said it is all part of an effort to turn the United States over to communism.

THE NAZIS HAVE directed their demonstration at Skokie because more than half the town's population is Jewish.

"We wanted to take it right to the heart of the problem," Collin said. He labels Jews an "internal threat" to the United States.

"The Jews are a parasite on the back of our people," Collins said. "The enemy of all civilization are the Jews."

Collin admits something that is evident after several minutes of conversation with him.

"We're fanatics," Collin said. "You know what a fanatic is? Someone who believes in something so much he is willing to die for it, and make others die, too."

COLLIN SAID he did not always hate Jews and races other than whites. He first began to study Nazi literature when he was in college. But he said his initial interest in Hitler goes back further.

"I was always drawn to Adolph Hitler since I was a small boy," Collin said. "A lot of children are."

Collin claims the National Socialist Party is gaining strength in the United States, though he will not release even the numbers of the Chicago membership. He said disclosing a membership figure would let "the enemy know what they're up against."

COLLIN SAID he believes he is helping to uphold the American way of life through anti Semitic activism.

"I'm convinced we are treading in the footsteps of the founding fathers," he said.

Collin said it does not matter that the world rejected his brand of racism when Nazi Germany was defeated in World War II.

"The world is never ready for idealism," he said.

Plimpton tells graduates 'don't go' into real world

RABBI KARZEN said his temple never had the decline in attendance experienced by many churches and synagogues. "We have the largest attendance of any synagogue in the northwest suburbs," he said.

Rabbi Karzen said he tries to make his synagogue an "oasis" where people can go to recover from the hectic suburban lifestyle.

"My approach to religion is what I call 'faith-lifting,'" he said. "I want people to feel good."

Karzen said he thinks the religious upswing is a result of many people searching for an "anchor." "Religion provides stability," he said.

The Rev. R. Carl Menkens of the Presbyterian Church of the Cross in Hoffman Estates said his church has experienced an "active growth" of about 200 families a year.

"THE COMMUNITY is growing rapidly," Rev. Menkens said, "and there are a lot of lonely people looking for something to tie in to. The mobile society causes people to tie themselves to the church for stability."

Rev. Menkens said the renewed interest also is due to the fact churches have made themselves "more relevant" to everyday life than they have been in the past.

"The church has identified itself with issues people have to live with," he said. "The church was in the forefront of the civil rights movement and other things," Rev. Menkens said.

Rev. Menkens said the greatest gains have been made by fundamentalist sects. "There's been a definite upsurge in pop religion," he said.

"As the Jesus freaks have grown up, they've just cut their hair and put on suits and ties. They're still there."

Bakalis' optimistic fiscal report rapped by Mugalian

by STEVE BROWN

SPRINGFIELD—State Rep. Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine, the chairman of the liberal Illinois House Democratic Study Group, has written a report critical of Illinois Comptroller Michael Bakalis' contention the state has more money than Gov. James R. Thompson reports.

In a sharply worded, two page memorandum, Mugalian contends Bakalis' estimates of the state's fiscal condition "are of no real value" and that "the Democratic Party can ill-afford to take a position on budgetary issues based on the comptroller's presentation."

Mugalian, the leader of a growing 25-30 member bloc of independent Democrats, prepared the memo following a Bakalis briefing on June 8 to the House Democratic Caucus.

Several Bakalis aides discounted Mugalian's criticism, but promised a full rebuttal later this week.

"I THINK THE memo is a disaster of distortion, said Donald Eslick, an administrative assistant for Bakalis. Eslick also suggested Mugalian's comments would carry little influence with other members of the Illinois House.

Another Bakalis aide hinted that Mugalian was prompted to write the report by aides to Thompson. Mugalian said he had checked with the Illinois Bureau of the Budget on the certain details, but said he initiated the memo on his own.

While the Democratic Study Group includes many independent Democrats who frequently vote against the Democratic majority in the legislature, the criticism of Bakalis is considered unusual.

In the memo, Mugalian took issue with a number of conclusions reached by Bakalis, who insisted the state could afford to spend between $80 and $100 million more than Thompson has proposed in the budget.

Mugalian said the presentation failed to offer clear documentation of his reports.

"WHAT MUST BE provided are revenue projections by revenue sources, so these may be compared with the bureau of the budget's published projections. Any differences can then be intelligently explored by all concerned," Mugalian said.

The break with Bakalis is seen as another indication that Democrats are hesitant to force spending much above Thompson's revenue estimate.

Bakalis has been trying to provide ammunition for some lawmakers who are pushing for additional aid to state education, pay hikes for state workers and increased spending for other programs.

The lack of confidence shown in the Mugalian memo, while not a total setback for Bakalis, will probably not increase public Democratic confidence in any move to increase spending.

Compromise reached on felonies

SPRINGFIELD — A new compromise emerged Thursday that probably will allow Gov. James. R. Thompson to establish a new class of felony crimes.

Although the governor's already-amended criminal justice legislative package appeared to be deadlocked in the Illinois House Wednesday, several state senators appear to have forged a new compromise in the Senate.

Rather than force a vote on SB165 in the House, the current strategy appears to be to move to amend HB1500 today in the Illinois Senate Judiciary II Committee. That committee put together the first compromise plan last month, which was passed in the upper chamber, but delayed in the House.

SEVERAL SOURCES confirmed that the governor has met with State Sen. Robert Egan, D-Chicago and Jack E. Bowers, R-Downers Grove, several times in recent days to discuss the compromise measure. Bowers and Egan were the chief negotiators in the first compromise that was negotiated last month.

The new crime category, known as Class X felonies, would cover convictions involving aggravated kidnapping for ransom, rape, sale of narcotics, calculated criminal drug conspiracy, armed robbery, arson, use of a weapon during a forcible felony and two categories of taking indecent liberties with a child. These crimes carry a minimum of six years in prison without parole.

The private conversations caused some embarrassment late Wednesday night, when State Rep. Allen F. Bennett, R-Decatur, the House sponsor of SB165, tried to call for a vote on a motion to discharge the bill from committee.

However, several House Democrats told Bennett the vote was not needed.

BENNETT TOLD reporters later he was "shocked and appalled" by the governor's action. Bennet had tried to met with Thompson Thursday to discuss the situation, but it was uncertain whether the meeting took place.

Thompson's legal counsel Gary Starkman, the chief negotiator on the criminal justice legislation, said earlier this week that the negotiations were continuing in an effort to keep the governor's Class X felony provisions alive. Thursday, he remained tight-lipped on the new agreement.

Since the criminal justice legislation passed the Illinois Senate earlier this session, it is expected that an amendment to include the Class X provision in HB1500 would be successful.

The move would require the Illinois House to concur with the amendment later in the session.

Nixon had prior knowledge: Hunt

Convicted Watergate burgler E. Howard Hunt told a group of executives Thursday he is convinced former President Richard M. Nixon had prior knowledge of the break-in at Democratic national headquarters. But Hunt, who served 30 months of a 20-year sentence, told the Executive Club in Berwyn he had no direct knowledge that Nixon knew about the 1972 break-in. Hunt, who received $1,000 for speaking to the group, said he joined in the conspiracy because "20 years as a CIA official taught me to take orders."

Lawsuit filed for slain rioters

Families of two of the men killed during riots June 4 in the Humbolt Park neighborhood Thursday filed a $46 million damage suit against city officials. The defendants are Mayor-elect Michael A. Bilandic, police Superintendent James M. Rochford, several individual policemen from the Wood Street District and four unnamed policemen. Attorneys for the survivors of Raphael Cruz, 25, and Julio Osorio, charged police were responsible for inciting the riot and have begun a "coverup" of the affair.

"The police must bear full responsibility for the shootings," Atty. Peter J. Schmiedel said. Official explanations of the shootings, he said "are complete and total fabrication. The police near the park behaved in a hostile, insulting and intimidating manner," Schmiedel said. Rochford supported police action in the neighborhood during and before the riots, which took three lives and injured more than 100 persons.

Photos on drivers licenses start today

Employes at the state's 104 driver examining stations are bracing themselves for the beginning today of a new program to put color photos on drivers licenses of Illinois' 6.5 million motorists. The secretary of state's office is also offering an identification card for drivers and non-drivers alike. Bill Logan, director of driver service for Sec. of State Alan J. Dixon, said Thursday about half of the state's drivers, some 3.2 million, will be photographed in the first year, taking into account applications for new, corrected and duplicate licenses. All drivers will have photographs on their licenses after nine years, Logan said.

Escapee caught hour after flight

A Vienna Correctional Center inmate was captured Thursday less than an hour after he fled a day work release detail, took a car and drive some 25 miles to Metropolis, prison officials said. Assistant Warden Donald Hood said the escaper, James Allen Buckholz, 36, was returned to the minimum security prison and placed in its segregation unit. Hood said the prison would ask that escape charges be filed against Buckholz, who was serving a life sentence for murder from Madison County.

Hood said Buckholz and another prisoner were assigned to haul hay for a farmer about 5 miles northwest of the prison. He said Buckholz allegedly got into an argument with another farmer, fled the scene and took a car from another farm around 1:45 p.m.

Suburbs back 3% RTA gas tax

by MARSHA BOSLEY

The suburbs face a gasoline tax of up to 3 per cent if a proposal by suburban members of the Regional Transportation Authority clears the Illinois legislature and the RTA board.

RTA director D. Daniel Baldino, after joining other suburban members earlier this year in rejecting a 5 per cent gasoline tax for the six-county area served by the RTA, Thursday proposed a differential tax as a compromise measure.

Baldino suggested a gas tax be imposed on Chicago and all areas outside the city served by the RTA based on the cost of commuter services to those regions.

THE PROPOSAL was made because RTA budget talks were deadlocked as a result of suburban members' opposition to an across-the-board 5 per cent gas tax throughout the six-county region. The proposed $230 million RTA budget for fiscal 1978 depends on the 5 per cent tax. The agency faces a $53 million deficit without the anticipated gas tax revenue.

RTA officials said the Chicago Transit Authority is the most important transportation network in the state. As a result, more than half of the proposed RTA budget, $140 million, is expected to fund the CTA next year.

Baldino said certain areas served by the RTA do not need a 5 per cent gas tax to continue providing existing services "or perhaps even new services." According to state law, any money raised through a gasoline tax must be returned to the county where it was collected.

BALDINO SAID if the proposal comes to a vote he will support a gas tax for the suburbs of between 2 and 3 per cent. A 2 per cent tax would raise about $12 million from the suburbs.A 3 per cent tax would generate about $18 million, he said.

Under Baldino's proposal, Chicago might have to impose the full 5 per cent gas tax although he said, "I'll leave that up to the Chicago directors." Baldino figured Chicago will raise about $95 million for the RTA next year without the tax. The city's RTA expenses will total nearly $158 million, he said.

A special four-member panel appointed by Patrick L. O'Malley, chairman of the RTA Finance and Audit Committee, will meet today to discuss Baldino's proposal. The RTA board has scheduled a special meeting Monday to consider its new budget. The budget must be approved by June 30.

'Base resources on need not enrollment'

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

If achieving high scores on the Iowa Tests of Basic Skills is to be the goal in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, staff and materials will have to be allocated according to need not the number of students, Tom Powers, principal at Hopkins School, said.

Resource distribution is based on enrollment without regard for the fact that some schools have needs others do not have, he said.

"It's universally accepted by the professionals in the district that Rupley and Hopkins schools have unique needs," Powers said. "If academic achievement at the highest level is to be the goal of of the district then the board is going to have to put their money where their mouth is."

School-by-school Iowa test results released by administrators this week show composite scores were lowest at Rupley School, 305 E. Oakton, Elk Grove Village, and Hopkins School, 231 S. Shadywood Ln., Elk Grove Village. While scores at Hopkins and Rupley ranged between the 34th and 59th percentiles, scores at Low School, Arlington Heights, and Byrd School, Elk Grove Village, ranged from the 83rd to the 93rd percentiles. The national average is at the 50th percentile.

IF A STUDENT scorss at the 50th percentile, it means that half the students in the country who took the test did better than he did and half did worse.

Powers said the student population at Hopkins is different than that at Byrd and Low and that although his students are very able they also have special needs.

Many of the Hopkins students have parents who don't have the time or the luxury to help them with their schoolwork, he said. They also often lack the money or time to provide their children with the enrichment experiences of affluent children, he said.

"We have to supplement by providing these experiences at school and that takes people and materials," Powers said.

DIST. 59 BOARD of Education Pres. Harold Harvey said studies show that a child's socioeconomic background has "no bearing" on his educational progress.

"Where somebody has made the effort, ghetto schools are ranking in the 50th and 60th percentiles," he said. "What's most effective is good teachers."

Harvey further contended that there is no apparent correlation between high and low test scores and the amount of dollars spent on school programs.

"The rallying cry in this district has become spend more money and all our problems will be solved," he said. "That just doesn't hold water."

POWERS SAID that education is not as important an issue to some of the parents at Hopkins as it is to parents elsewhere in the district and that teachers are therefore starting at a disadvantage.

"We have to do a better job of motivating these kids to learn before we can begin to teach them," he said. "They're able, but they have different needs and require different efforts."

Powers said his students need more personal contact with their teachers and more intense instruction — things which can be provided only if teachers have aides. Hopkins has no classroom aides because the resource allocation formula does not call for any.

correct capitalization, punctuation or word usage in it.

To score at the 50th percentile in word usage, a third grader typically would be asked to find the line in the following four lines with a mistake in it.

1. We buyed a bush to plant.
2. It wasn't a very big bush.
3. That spring it grew and grew.
4. No mistakes.

Iowa test scores are based on the number of questions a student answers correctly. A third grader answering 13 of 38 capitalization questions correctly will score in the 50th percentile, Harner said. Ten correct answers will drop his score to the 31st percentile and 15 correct answers will raise it to the 64th percentile.

Administrators say this means a student who scores in the 64th percentile is not that much more skilled than a student who scores in the 50th percentile.

TO SCORE AT THE 50th percentile on the math concepts portion of the test, third graders must know the relative value of coins and how to read and write their amounts; recognize kinds and parts of geometric figures; measure time and quantity and perform fundamental operations with whole numbers, Harner said.

To score better than the 50th percentile, third graders also must know how to deal with equations, inequalities and number sentences; fractions and capacity measurement, he said.

None of these math concepts is tested with straight computational questions. A student first must be able to read before he can determine what operation he is to perform.

To score in the 50th percentile in math concepts, a third grader typically would be asked:

There were six people ahead of Tom in the lunch line. In which place in line was Tom?

How would you write 40 + 200 + 7 as a three-digit numeral?

Fourth graders would be asked:

How would you read 1,034?

1. One thousand and thirty four.
2. Ten thousand and thirty four.
3. One thousand three hundred and forty.
4. One hundred and thirty four.

THE MATH PROBLEM section of the test also requires students to read before they can compute. Here, third graders scoring at the 50th percentile must know how to add and subtract whole numbers, Harner said. To score better than this, they also must know how to multiply and divide using whole numbers, fractions and decimals, he said.

"It's important to be able to do math problems using words, but the question becomes what are you measuring," Robert Bortnick, reading clinic director, said. "If a child scores low, does it mean he can't compute or does it mean he can't read?

Math concept and problem scores in Dist. 59 ranged from a high of the 92nd percentile at one school to a low of the 27th percentile at another.

Scores on the reading portion of the test ranged from a high of the 94th percentile to a low of the 20th percentile. The average third-grade score in six schools fell below the 50th percentile, as did the average fourth-grade score in four schools, the average fifth-grade score in five schools, the average sixth-and seventh-grade score in four schools and the average eighth-grade score in two schools.

Other principals receiving pay increases were Edward Spacapan, Prospect High School, from $34,500 to $37,000; Robert Hoese, Rolling Meadows High School, from $35,600 to $38,100, and Thomas Shirley, Wheeling High School, from $36,200 to $38,600.

Under the terms of a contract negotiated with the board by the Dist. 214 teachers union, teachers will receive an average 8.5 per cent salary increase in 1977-78.

Adventures of your Garbageman

. . . About Walking on Lawns

We read the other day about the hue and cry in Roselle over a postoffice order (yes, "order") that letter carriers MUST walk across lawns to save time, "unless there is an objection or a hazard." The newspaper item indicated that this is a somewhat common requirement. One postmaster was quoted: "This is nothing new."

For the record, our men do NOT operate under any such order. Like newsboys, postmen, etc. they doubtless take short-cuts here and there — it's human nature — BUT we expect them to use good judgment and not cross any area where there may be damage to shrubbery or grass.

So, we'll repeat our annual offer: If our man walks on your lawn unnecessarily, just phone in (253-1708), tell us your address, and we'll make sure that he doesn't continue to do so.

Police broke up the robbery attempt and rescued six hostages, four of them in a getaway car. Three suspects, all from Indiana were arrested.

Guard 'reading' during Ray escape is fired

PETROS, Tenn. (UPI) — A guard who allegedly was either reading or "looked the other way" when James Earl Ray and five companions went over the wall at Brushy Mountain State Prison was fired Thursday for negligence.

Floyd Hooks, 38, was in the tower closest to the section of the wall the convicts scaled. He refused to comment on his firing or say whether he would appeal. "Right now, I don't care to talk about that," he said.

"His (Hook's) primary responsibility is to keep an eye on the wall and see that nobody gets within 10 feet of it," said Corrections Com. C. Murray Henderson.

"I KNOW SOME people who said he was reading. Others said he looked the other way the whole time.

"Hooks said he was paying attention to the yard but the evidence is overwhelming that he looked the other way. How can seven men get across the wall if you are paying attention The evidence just doesn't weigh out," Henderson said.

Although seven inmates made the escape attempt, only six got out. The seventh was stopped by gunfire before he could get over the wall. All were recaptured.

Henderson said Hicks "did not start shooting until a guard further away started shooting. This escape lasted over 10 or 12 minutes at least. Surely he could have looked over there at one time or anther."

Asked what Hooks could have been reading, Henderson replied, "I don't know what he was reading. He might have been reading 'War and Peace' for all I know."

HENDERSON SAID Ray, serving a 99 year term for the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., apparently was the ringleader of the break, although authorities previously had speculated the break was masterminded by another of the escapees, Larry Hacker.

"As far as I am concerned, he was either the first or second man across the wall," Henderson said. "He was certainly dressed for the occasion since he was wearing dark shirt and dark pants. He was the only one who had a substantial amount of money — $290. I think he was organized some. I think he had more experience with prison breaks than some of the others."

"Some ofthe prisoners who escaped with him had white tee shirts which are easier to spot in the woods. Another had on a pair of white pants and that is certainly not clothing conducive to escaping," Henderson said.

Ray and his companions used a ladder constructed of pipe to scale a 12-foot wall at the rear of the prison recreation yard about 6:30 p.m. CDT Friday. Hook was in a tower perched atop the back wall about 75 yards away.

Extension OKd for Carter tax return

President Carter has been granted a second extension for filing 1976 tax returns because of confusion over "how to handle a certain kind of income," his chief spokesman said Thursday. Carter, whose 1975 taxes are being audited, told reporters Wednesday his 1976 tax forms were submitted that day — just in time to meet a deadline granted by the first extension. But Press Secretary Jody Powell said the President was mistaken — the second time in two weeks of erroneous statements on Carter's taxes have come out of the White House and later been corrected. "The President and Mrs. Carter decided they wanted to take a few more days to look over their returns," Powell said, noting that the Carters already had $26,000 withheld from their 1976 income. Powell said the deadline for filing was extended to mid July but Carter expected to file the returns before the end of next week.

Porn law could outlaw 'Exorcist'

Deputy Attorney General Peter Flaherty warned Thursday that bills aimed at curbing the child pornography market could outlaw such moves as "The Exorcist" and interfere with the rights of young teenage couples. Flaherty, testifying before the Senate Judiciary Committee, said the Justice Department favors passage of measures to curtail sexual exploitation of children. But he asked that pending bills be changed to avoid legal and constitutional problems. The bills set fines and prison terms for persons who permit, entice, induce or coerce a boy or girl under age 16 to take part in sexually explicit activities for promotion and distribution through the mails or in interstate commerce.

The legislation is aimed at the growing number of pornographic books, magazines, films and slides featuring children. Another key provision, strongly endorsed by Flaherty, gives young boys the same protection young girls now have from being taken across state lines for prostitution. "The present bill would forbid the manufacture and distribution of a film containing one brief scene of prohibited conduct," Flaherty said, adding the bill would cover "The Exorcist," a movie which includes a scene where a child simulates masturbation.

Cancer treatment progress cited

Doctors are on the brink of making important progress in treating some of the major kinds of cancers that strike adults, leaders of the nation's anticancer effort told Congress Thursday. Dr. Guy Newell, acting director of the National Cancer Institute, and Benno Schmidt, chairman of the president's cancer panel, issued an optimistic report to a House subcommittee on the advances of new types of cancer therapy. Newell said the tally of cancers that are now controllable "to the point of being often curable" is particularly good in children and include acute leukemia and cancers of the bone and kidney.

"I think we are on the brink of doing for adults what we are doing for many childhood cancers," Newell told the panel in its review of the national effort to combat the disease that ranks as America's No. 2 killer behind heart disease. Newell said the tumors in adults now being treated with promising results by a combination of surgery or radiation and anticancer drugs include cancers of the breast, colon-rectum, ovary and lung. These, he said, account for about half of all adult cancers.

Senate nixes Korean pullout

The Senate refused Thursday to support President Carter's plan to withdraw American troops from South Korea or to ease the trade embargo against Cuba. However, it did reject a proposal to extract concessions from Havana before granting diplomatic recognition to Fidel Castro. It represented a double legislative defeat for Carter who wants to withdraw about 33,000 ground troops from South Korea within four to five years and to establish normal diplomatic relations with Cuba. Rejecting an amendment by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., which called for major concessions from the Castro regime as a price for full diplomatic relations, the Senate voted 54-37 for a weaker substitute from Democratic leader Robert Byrd.

The Byrd amendment — an expression of the Senate's position and not binding on the President — said Cuba's military involvement in Africa and its numerous political prisoners "must be taken into account" in any U.S.-Cuban negotiations. It called for establishing relations "in a deliberate manner and on a reciprocal basis," stressing the rights of U.S.citizens whose property was expropriated by the Castro government be protected. Dole called Byrd's substitute "a very weak and watered-down" measure "that says nothing."

Carter pledges health insurance

President Carter, saying the skyrocketing of hospital and medical costs is something the nation "obviously cannot afford," Thursday pledged to press Congress for a national health insurance early next year. Carter, who has been criticized for not moving quickly enough in the area of health care, met at the White House with a delegation from the Committee for National Health Insurance. "The hospital and medical care costs will double every five years," Carter said, "and this is something the nation obviously cannot afford."

Torture, rapes told by prisoner held in Mexico

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A man who served time in a Mexican jail told Congress Thursday police raped two American girls before his eyes, beat them until they looked like "hamburger" and tortured him until he begged for death.

Robert Smith also said that an agent of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency tortured him with electric shocks after his arrest in Acapulco, Mexico, in 1975. DEA denied the charge.

Smith said treatment got worse when he was thrown in jail.

"I saw two young girls tortured, burned by electric shocks, and raped by the commander of the Federal Judicial Police and his agents," in an Acapulco jail, Smith said.

"WHEN THE POLICE got through they looked like hamburger meat," Smith told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which is considering a proposed U.S.-Mexican prisoner exchange treaty.

Smith said a DEA agent named J. Medina, working with Mexican police to stamp out drug trafficking, tortured him with electric shocks in 1975. A DEA spokesman said Smith's charges were investigated and found to be "without substance."

In prison, Smith said, he was denied food and water and repeatedly tortured by one official seeking a confession.

"I DID NOT confess. But I hurt so badly I begged him to kill me," he said.

Smith said he was arrested and imprisoned in Acapulco for 20 months after seven marijuana seeds were discovered in his private plane.

Subsequently, all charges against him were dropped and he was released. He said he has been unable to recover his aircraft.

Smith was an uninvited witness who spoke to the panel after being introduced by Deborah Friedman and Paul DiCaro of Healdsburg, Calif., who said they were arrested in Guadalajara in January, 1976, for possessing 13 grams of marijuana.

DiCARO TOLD the committee when he and Miss Friedman were released after months of imprisonment they were "kidnaped" outside the jail by Mexican immigration authorities and allowed to leave only after paying an $800 extortion fee.

The committee is considering a treaty under which the 579 Americans in Mexican jails would be returned home in exchange for Mexican prisoners in U.S. jails.

Legal witnesses raised no serious objections to the treaty and recommended approval. But Harvard law student Richard Petree Jr. said the pact could cause problems if returned prisoners sought to contest the legality of their sentences in American courts.

He recommended American prisoners be required to sign a waiver "of American judicial review of the foreign conviction" before being transferred to the United States to serve out their Mexican term.

Elections board topic of GOP-Thompson meet

by STEVE BROWN

SPRINGFIELD — Six Cook County Republicans met privately with Gov. James R. Thompson Thursday to propose alternatives for restructuring the state board of elections.

The group, which included Cook County Commissioners Hal Tyrrell, the Republican County chairman, and Carl Hansen, who heads the suburban GOP organization, talked to the governor behind closed doors for nearly one hour.

Both Tyrrell and Hansen said the meeting was confined to the state elections board. The Illinois Supreme Court has ruled the board is unconstitutional. Lawmakers have been unsuccessful in finding a legislative compromise for a new state board and they face a court mandated June 30 deadline.

THE MAJOR stumbling block on the new board is how many members the panel will have. Most proposals have involved even-numbered boards with various mechanisms for breaking tie votes.

The governor has consistently supported legislation which would create a five member board with the fifth member being an independent not affiliated with a political party.

Sources said the suburban Republicans tried to steer Thompson off that position, but got no assurances from the governor.

Tyrrell, Hansen and State Rep. Donald L. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, said the group pushed for a six or eight member board.

Besides Totten, State Senators David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, Richard Walsh, R-River Forest, and Mark Rhoads, R-Western Springs attended the meeting.

TYRRELL SAID he expects Thompson to speak with party officials around the state before deciding what action he will take.

Some lawmakers have argued that a five-member board is not feasible because the independent member would line up with members from either of the major political parties to give that side a majority.

Difficulty over the even-numbered board centered around questions on how tie votes are broken.

Legislators may be faced with a special session of the Illinois General Assembly this summer if they do not reach a compromise before the current session ends June 30.

The state supreme court has extended the deadline for lawmakers to propose a new board that will meet the court's objection over who appoints the members of the board.

Probe of girls' slayings continues

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (UPI) — Crime researchers are comparing fingerprints taken from a burglarized farmhouse with those on the bodies of three young Girl Scouts to see if the same person committed the crimes, an investigator said Thursday.

The chief spokesman for the investigation said, however, no connection has been found.

"To my knowledge there has been no tie-up with the burglary," said District Atty. Sid Wise.

Wise said the burglary at the vacation farmhouse of Jack Shroff was of interest only "since it happened in close proximity" to Camp Scott, where three young Girl Scouts were murdered hours before dawn Monday.

Wise accused the news media of "blowing out of proportion" reports that something had been taken from a counselor's tent the night of the slayings, but refused to confirm or deny that anything was taken.

"I am not going to comment on anything material in the investigation," he said.

A DEPUTY SHERIFF said earlier in the day that fingerprints from the farmhouse and the counselor's tent have been taken so they can be compared with prints lifted from the bodies of the murder victims.

The Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation, which was studying the fingerprints, refused to discuss the case.

Although more than 100 persons have been interviewed, there have been no arrests and very few leads since Lori Lee Farmer, Doris Denise Milner and Michelle Guse were sexually molested, strangled and bludgeoned to death at the camp. Their bodies were found Monday.

Seniors out for laughs...

Contestant Jo Watrin concludes her act in an uncomplimentary position.

...but some gonged instead

by JEFF TRIMBLE

"Almost live — from Mount Prospect — it's the Gong Show!"

A woman clad in bobby socks and carrying pom pons burst onto stage and led the audience in spelling "Senior Power." The response was great, for this was no ordinary parody of the popular television show. The cheerleader was 78-year-old Marie Fynn, and her fellow performers and audience were a part of the River Trails Senior Citizens Club "Gong Show" program.

The Wednesday afternoon program was held at the River Trails Park District Building, 1313 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect. It was the last meeting of the seniors club until autumn.

THE SHOW features amateur performers before a panel of entertainment celebrities. The panel rates each act on a 1-to-10 scale, with the option of ringing a gong to halt a particularly bad performance.

The seniors' "Gong Show" consisted of 14 acts and a panel of five local professional entertainers to rate the performers. Panel members were: Dancer-singer Lucille Rich, Mount Prospect; magician George Johnstone and his wife, Betty, Prospect Heights; and comedian Sonny Mars and his wife, Ruby, a former dancer, Arlington Heights.

The acts by club members demonstrated various talents. Winner Elsie Venice, 76, appeared as a very pregnant ballerina dancing to "I Could Have Danced All Night." She ended her performance by going into "labor" and being helped from the stage, only to regurn with a "new born" doll.

Second place went to cheerleader Mrs. Fynn, and third to "The Great Impersonator" Helen Wisnowski. Mrs. Wisnowski sang both the male and female parts to a selection while switching characters behind a cardboard cut-out.

BUT THE show-stopper of the afternoon was Ted Siers, 68, who appeared in several acts. Siers was a bottle-sucking baby in a rendition of "Baby Face," and then returned soon after to perform a belly dance, dressed in appropriate garb.

If that wasn't enough, Siers topped that in the second half of the show when he peeled a banana while roller skating around the stage.

For his efforts, Siers was "gonged" twice and received an award as the last place contestant. His trophy, covered by a dirty sock, brought a laugh from the 60 club members.

The last act was "The Happy Home Maker," in which Mrs. Lela Lundrigan quieted a hurrying master of ceremonies by smashing a pie into his face. But the emcee, her husband, Al, took it all in stride and continued the show.

MRS. VENICE brushed off her first-place finish by saying she hadn't practiced at all.

"Everybody did the best they could," Mrs. Venice said. I just happened to have a funny act, that's all."

Siers said of his unusual performances: "I just tried to pep the show up a little, and help everybody have a good time."

The program was the creation of director Peggy Schwab. She said she had no probem finding participants among club members, because "seniors don't like to sit." "I had to turn some people away because we had too many volunteers," she said.

SCHWAB HAS created several other programs in the past two years, including a mock wedding and a version of "Twas the Night Before Christmas."

Judge Sonny Mars summed up the afternoon well as he presented the trophies.

"There are no losers here. Everybody's a winner just for being here."

British 'volunteers' carry Amin through city streets

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — A group of 19 Britons carried Ugandan President Idi Amin shoulder high through the streets of Kampala Thursday and Amin said "they were very tired." The mercurial dictator also warned that anyone who mistreats Britons "is heading for trouble with me."

Amin himself confirmed the bizarre spectacle over Radio Uganda which had earlier reported that Britons living in Ugana had "volunteered" to carry the 258-pound Amin 25 miles through Kampala to the annual budget day speech.

"I think you have heard that it was carried . . . by 19 people (Britons) who managed to carry me for 11½ miles and they were very tired," Amin later told the budget meeting.

AMIN GAVE NO further details of the incident, which diplomats in Kenya saw as the burly dictator's unorthodox response to the Commonwealth conference's public condemnation of his regime's "sustained disregard" for human rights.

The report of such a spectacle recalled an incident in 1975 when several Britons carried Amin on a homemade throne into a diplomatic reception at the summit meeting of the Organization of African Unity.

One of the men who carried Amin in 1975, Robert Scanlon, was arrested on spy charges last week. Radio Uganda said then that Scanlon would be executed by the end of this week if found guilty.

At the budget meeting, Amin, in an abrupt change of mind, voiced respect for the British and warned Ugandans against harming them.

"I don't want any British man to be mistreated in Uganda," Amin told the budget day audience. "I want you to keep good understanding with them."

"You must not do something bad to them," Amin warned his countrymen. "You must be very good to them. Anybody who is playing with the British nationals in Uganda is heading for trouble from me."

How vulgar! No extras at all! They just fly there!

Don't malign Jersey City because someone loves it

Jim Bishop

Kelly and I — and my old man too — could joke about the town of our origin, but we frowned at others who did it. When you make fun of Jersey City, you bring out the Archie Bunker in me.

Whatever good happened to me was the result of that smoky industrial town on the edge of the Hudson. Whatever bad there is I did myself. The strict upbringing of John and Jenny Bishop equipped me with a well-honed sense of values, and proved that no one was ever going to give me something for nothing.

The unselfish teaching of the Sisters of Charity at St. Patrick's School, and the discipline of a ruler across the hand, proved that is was less painful to study and get a passing grade than to risk the displeasure of those dark swans.

THE LADIES AT the Clinton Avenue public library sweet-talked me into withdrawing good books rather than trash. The cop on the beat was my friend when I was afraid. The iceman gave me two dollars on Saturday for driving his ice wagon.

Neighborhood ladies fed the children of others when momma was sick. Men on a block played pinochle and euchre and poker on Saturday nights. No one was more than a month ahead of the landlord. Racism was unknown because we lived among Italians and Poles and Jews and Irish. The colored kids lived on Ege Avenue and won at baseball and lost at touch football.

Thus I am irritated to find that in "The Book of Lists," written by the Irving Wallace family, that Jersey City leads all municipalities as a Not-So-Good place to live.

I DON'T believe that a book of lists is valid, especially when it tries to "estimate" the I.Q. of personages long since dead. In ranking the five "Most Hated and Feared Persons in History," the Wallaces rely on 3,500 persons who visit Madame Tussaud's Wax Works in London.

Jimmy Carter is number four, behind Adolf Hitler and ahead of Count Dracula. Among the "Most Beloved Heroes," Jesus comes in third, between Winston Churchill and John F. Kennedy.

Under the heading "20 Famous People Who Died Young," the number one person was Anne Frank, a Dutch Jew put to death by the Nazis when she was 15. Until her diary was discovered after her death, no one but her family and neighbors had ever heard of Anne Frank. Famous?

THE WALLACE family lays the blame for the No-So-Good Places to live on Ben-Chieh Liu, who researched a tract called "Quality of Life in the U.S. Metropolitan Areas." He gives 10 points for the lousiest places to live, shading down to one point for the least awful.

He places Jersey City in municipalities of "Over 500,000," which is going to be news to everyone in the town, which is only about half that size. One must assume, on reading the list downward, that there are a great number of Southern towns that Ben-Chieh Liu dislikes.

Among the Not-So-Goods are: Birmingham, New Orleans, San Antonio, Jacksonville, Greensboro - Winston - Salem - High Point, Norfolk - Portsmouth, Memphis, Philadelphia, Tampa - St. Petersburg, Fla.

ALSO MOBILE, Charleston, S.C., Macon, Ga., Montgomery, Ala., Columbus, Ga., Fayetteville, N.C., Greenville, and Columbia, S.C., Huntington, W. Va., Ashland, Ky., Pine Bluff, Ark., McAllen - Pharr - Edinburg, Tex., Fort Smith, Ark., Lawton, Okla., Brownsville, Tex., Albany, Ga., Tuscaloosa, Ala., Savannah, Ga., and Gadsden, Ala.

Millions of persons grew up and own houses in those places. Assuming that this is still a free country and they could buy anywhere, all of those cities and towns must have a number of redeeming features.

Any book which will use Clifford Irving, who wrote the fake biography of Howard Hughes, as a source for the "10 Best Forgers of All Time" (he names himself as number nine and forgets that he got caught and served time) cannot be all good.

IF ANY of you out there were born or grew up in any of the cities enumerated as "Not-So-Good" (a weaseling phrase) please drop a note to me at King Features Syndicate, 235 East 45th St., New York City.

I promise to read your note and forward it to Irving Wallace. Perhaps he will tell us about all the superior qualities of his town. In my city we made fun of relatives who fell into money and moved out into the suburbs.

My debt to Jersey City is enormous . . .

Competition helps flyers

Beginning Sept. 26, Americans will be able to fly roundtrip from New York to London for $235.30 — some 60 per cent less than the current $767 fare.

The Civil Aeronautics Board, under increasing pressure to loosen its controls over airline fares, has granted Laker Airways of Britain permission to operate the low cost, no frills charter flights as an experiment for one year.

The CAB's decision is long overdue.

For the past several years deregulation of the airlines has been a controversial issue. Proposals to open airline fares and service to competition have met with strong opposition from the industry.

Advocates of deregulation say CAB-controlled fares have created artificially high prices and allowed the airlines to operate inefficiently, competing in terms of luxury items on the planes rather than price.

The airlines argue deregulation would result in higher fares and elimination of air service to many communities with a marginal number of passengers.

However, in California and Texas, private airlines operating within state boundaries, and thus uncontrolled by the CAB, have shown that low fares and no-frills can be profitable between smaller cities.

Even some airlines are shifting their stance. United Airlines officials, for example, have said they favor "pricing flexibility" and are willing to accept more competition.

And in response to Laker Airways' Skytrain service, several airlines have said they may seek approval for low cost fares on their New York-London routes.

Hopefully, the experiment will resolve some of the arguments over deregulation.

If other airlines decide to compete with Laker's price, maybe the next step will be competition for fewer flight delays, better baggage handling and less overbooking.

In that case, both the airlines and consumers will win, with service and efficiency improving and the passengers being given the choice between flights with full luxury service or frill-free service.

Now's time for practical currency

It's hard to find someone who doesn't love the silver dollar — in theory at least.

The cartwheel makes an ideal stuffer for Christmas stockings. Hefting one is likely to remind the Walter Mitty in each of us that the cowboys of the Old West used to slap their bucks on the bar (admittedly they were gold pieces, but Walter Mitty doesn't care) and order a Red Eye.

Unfortunately, the time has come when currency which is kept for the nostaliga value is a luxury the American people can no longer afford.

The U.S. Treasury Dept. has recommended that the 50 cent piece be eliminated and that the silver dollar (which is no longer silver) be reduced in size to something that is easier to carry in purse and pants pocket.

Treasury Sec. Michael Blumenthal said this week his department has not yet reached a conclusion on another controversial proposal — to eliminate the penny.

As hard as it is to admit, Treasury's proposals for the dollar and half dollar are reasonable. In a society where vending machines are becoming more and more numerous and inflation is an unreversed reality, the small dollar coin would be handy.

Anyone who has visited Europe knows that many countries, including Germany, have small coins for their base unit of currency. The one mark coin, for example, has great utility.

Congress will have to approve the proposed changes in our currency and it is likely it will be some time before it gets around to action.

However, it seems likely that in the foreseeable future we will see the half dollar and dollar coins replaced by more practical alternatives.

Two views on Anita Bryant's crusade

I would like to respond to the anti-homosexual campaign that has been undertaken by Anita Bryant. I am in full agreement with her way of thinking, but I feel that her campaign should include other segments of society as well. For instance, what about the physcially handicapped, retarded, and the elderly? Not only are these groups of people a burden on society, but in the case of the elderly, it is considered a sin by our society to grow old. This relates to what Ms. Bryant says about it being a sin to be a homosexual. I don't feel that her campaign should stop there. What about Jews, blacks and Latinos? Aren't they different from the rest of us?

I agree that our country is based on democratic principles that state we are all created equal, but to hell with that. Why should we concern ourselves just because one small segment of society has lost some of their rights? Why should we concern ourselves just because our so-called "normal" population of heterosexuals, many of whom are involved in child and wife abuse, child pornography, rape, and murder, are forcing their particular life style on other people? After all, we know best don't we? Our sky rocketing divorce rate should clearly state the answer to that.

There is one more small segment of society that is presenting a real threat to the rest of us "normal" people. That threatening segment is comprised of Anita Bryant and her followers who are involved in a massive insane witchhunt. They preach Christianity, always professing to "Love Thy Neighbor" and "Live and Let Live," but what they are really preaching is "Love Thy Neighbor only as long as he or she agrees with what I say and believe, otherwise . . . hate!"

THE EDITORIAL of June 11 concerning the destructiveness of the anti-gay vote fails to consider community rights. The Herald may sneer at Anita Bryant for a "certain brand of intolerant wholesomeness" but I would submit that she did not desire to become a national spokeswoman. Her goal was to discourage her community and schools from being compelled to accept "a large, visible homosexual community . . . flaunting not only their sexual preferences but their sexuality."

While I do not suggest that the government should regulate sexual preference, I do not wish the courts to tell a community it is forced to condone this behavior. While condemning only public and not private sin may seem inconsistent to The Herald it does protect young people.

You may advocate the gay activists seeking their rights in court but it seems a little like the criminal's rights being protected to the detriment of the victimized. I suggest that were the gays engaging in their "outrageous public behavior" at the corner of Rte. 83 and Northwest Hwy. the public would have little acceptance or sympathy. The gays are a community, a minority community. Doesn't the majority have the right to at least try to set moral values for itself?

They want village in Dist. 25 issue

The village shold have a say in school closings!

The Arlington Heights village zoning regulations are designed to "promote and protect the public health, safety, morals, comfort, and general welfare of the people" (all 71,000 of us in A.H., not just Dist. 25 residents). The purpose of "special use" and the ordinance change being recommended is to guarantee that any user will "not be detrimental to the . . . safety . . . or general welfare of persons residing or working in the vicinity or injurious to property values."

When the teachers and students vacate the junior high in the fall of 1978, the property ceases to be a school! Instead it becomes a vacant building whose new tenants will affect the character of the entire neighborhood and ultimately the village (by way of taxpayers' services, library, parks, police, water, etc.)

The use of such a building by a university that by its own admission conducts classes weekdays, Saturdays, Sundays, and evenings, is definitely not compatible with a residential neighborhood, and the impact on the safety of the school children at Windsor (should Miner be selected), access to the two nearby parks, land use, flooding due to the massive parking lot which would be required, and traffic are most definitely village issues. In fact, over 1,600 Arlington Heights residents expressed enough concern about these and other impact problems that they signed a petition allowing for an environmental review and asked the school board to delay any decision in this matter until such a study was completed. The school board did not respond to this petition — hardly the symbol of being "responsive to the needs and desires of the community" as you stated in your editorial!

The scare tactics being touted by the school board about a boarded-up vs. leased building are just that. Skokie's Dist. 68 rejected an offer from Oakton Community College to lease one of its closed schools. They said there were better alternatives than a commuter college for the area. The school is presently being used for many purposes, all compatible with the community and neighborhood and it has not been mothballed.

We commend the village board legal committee for seeing the ramifications of giving a school board, inexperienced in school closings, blanket control now and in future school closings. If this ordinance is approved by the trustees, then let Roosevelt request a special use variance and finally let all the ambiguous and unanswered questions be aired in an open environment at the municipal building!

Worthy of note

The young men and women whose beautiful works were displayed at Randhurst this past week deserve a salute from all citizens whether they have seen this display or not.

The Randhurst Corp. through the able leadership by Harold Carlson deserves congratulations for exhibiting this outstanding display of handicrafts. Many hours of hard work by the students went into the crafts such as art, machinery, woodworking, etc.

It is true that many shoppers saw the results of long hours of work by these budding craftsmen. However, it's too bad there was not enough reporting and recognition by all media such as radio, TV and the newspapers.

Too often sensationalism of all kinds is given headlines but something worthwhile like this exhibit by young people is either ignored or buried in the back pages.

'LWV members not Democrats'

As a lifelong Republican from a family of staunch Republican conservatives, it was interesting to learn that the Palatine Township Board of Auditors feels I am a Democrat by virtue of my membership in the Palatine League of Women Voters.

The League is for good government, period, and any and all governmental bodies are subject to League interest. If the League disagrees with the practices or policies of Palatine Township, it is because we feel there is room for improvement in some areas and has nothing to do with the personalities or political affiliations of the auditors. Do the auditors feel they should be above any criticism at all?

It is interesting to me that Palatine Township auditors, (Republicans all) think the Palatine League of Women Voters is Democratic. The Democratic Cook County Commissioners think we are Republican.

As a 10-year member of three leagues in two states, I can say quite honestly I have never known the political affiliation of any other member, with the exception of a few thanks to your recent article. That subject just never comes up at any meeting and has nothing to do with any study or consensus.

It is so unfortunately typical for governmental officers to respond to a difference of opinion by launching an attack of the source. Wouldn't it be refreshing for the public to hear a politician admit he wasn't perfect?

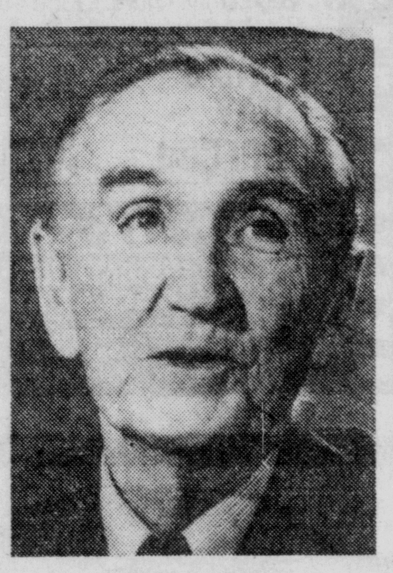
Mansfield as envoy needs luck in Japan

by ROBERT CRABBE
Commentary

TOKYO (UPI) — At age 74, Mike Mansfield of Montana has left the safety of his U.S. Senate seat for one of the most slippery rocks in American Diplomacy — the post of U.S. ambassador to Japan.

He is the ninth American since World War II to move into the stately embassy residence, with its corps of Japanese servants and black Cadillac.

The life-style is splendid. The pay is good. The work is interesting. Yet whether the ambassador enjoys it — or becomes a nervous man in luxurious surroundings — has little to do with his abilities. An ambassador in Tokyo can be at the mercy of events beyond his control.



MIKE MANSFIELD

LIKE HIS predecessors, Mansfield is well qualified for the post, but that is not enough. It also is necessary to be lucky.

For lucky ambassadors, Tokyo is just another distinguished entry in their career summaries. For the unlucky ones, those who are victims of circumstances, Japan is a part of their lives they would rather forget.

Even doing your job well is no guarantee. Douglas Macarthur II, who served from 1957-1961, saw Tokyo engulfed in anti-American rioting over renewal of the U.S.-Japan military alliance.

In part, the riots resulted from an overly heavy American military presence in Tokyo 15 years after the end of World War II. MacArthur saw the dangers of this early in his tour and was trying to move American forces out of the capital. But that took time. The fuse burned down to the powder before he could get it done.

EVEN THE EMBASSY Cadillac became a jail for MacArthur one day at Tokyo airport, when jeering demonstrators surrounded the car and trapped him in it. MacArthur had to keep a stiff upper lip in the locked auto for 10 minutes until Japanese police rescued him.

Armin H. Meyer (1969-1972) was the victim of former President Richard Nixon's itch to keep his policy of friendship with China a secret and serve it up to the world as a stunning surprise.

Among the people Nixon didn't tell about the new China policy was Meyer, amabassador to a country deeply concerned with China.

When Radio Peking disclosed in mid-1971 that Henry Kissinger had secretly visited China, Meyer was in no position to explain to a furious Japanese government that had worked with America for years to keep China out of the United Nations. His prestige was shaken for the six months he remained in Tokyo.

JAMES D. HODGSON, a former Lockheed vice president, did not have as bad a time as MacArthur or Meyer. But he too was reported to have left with relief.

Hodgson had no connection whatever with the scandal over Lockheed's alleged bribing of former Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka. Even so, he had to live with the fact that in 1976 Lockheed was not the best possible entry in an American ambassador's biography.

Hodgson kept a cool head and a modest profile after the scandal arose. President Gerald Ford's defeat last November gave him an occasion to go home gracefully.

One potential trap for Mansfield is an overenthusiastic buildup for him in the Tokyo press. The former Senate Majority leader comes in with a reputation as a "dove" — a critic of the Vietnam War and an advocate of full normalization of American relations with China.

TOKYO POLITICAL writers have speculated President Carter was trying to tell the Japanese something by appointing Mansfield to the job. Japanese commentators have guessed in print Mansfield was sent to Tokyo to smooth the way for an American pullout from Korea, or U.S. abandonment of Taiwan.

One unpleasant cartoon in a Tokyo newspaper depicted Mansfield, drawn as a giant, negotiating with Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda, who was depicted as a dwarf.

Actually the Carter administration's moves toward China, Korea and Japan so far have been slow and cautious, and that situation is not likely to change.

MANSFIELD UNDOUBTEDLY will be consulted on Asian policy, but in the end he will be what an ambassador is expected to be — a defender of the line decided on by the White House and the State Dept.

His assets include a deep knowledge of Asian history, 35 years of policital experience, and presumably enough stature to get the White House on the telephone in moments of crisis.

But in Tokyo he also might find it useful to carry a rabbit's foot.

She wants judge taken from bench

Removing Judge Simonson (of Madison, Wis.) from the bench would be one way of showing disapproval of his statement in regards to rape cases. But what he is really guilty of is giving license to all males to rape any female regardless of age or dress code.

The young man in question needs help, but instead of getting the help he needs, he was told by the judge that he is a normal male, acting like a normal male.

Does Judge Simonson think most males are over-sexed animals? Rape is a vicious crime and I don't feel that just because some girls and women go bra-less or wear short shorts that they should be subject to a rape attack. And neither should the poorly dressed young ladies. They might be subjected to crude remarks and proposals but no woman deserves to be raped and I don't think my husband is abnormal just because he never raped a woman.

Brezhnev takes president duties

LEONID BREZHNEV

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Supreme Soviet elected Leonid I. Brezhnev President Thursday, completing the biggest Kremlin shake-up since the ouster of the late Nikita Khruschev and reaffirming the Communist party chief's position as supreme ruler of the Soviet Union.

A joint session of the Supreme Soviet, the nation's nominal parliament, unanimously approved the 70-year-old Brezhnev for the job after quickly allowing his ousted predecessor, Nikolai V. Podgorny, to retire.

"I shall do my utmost," Brezhnev told the session after receiving a standing ovation, "so that our beloved country (will) be strong and prosperous, the life of the Soviet people still further improve, that peace on earth be further strengthened and that sound cooperation develop between the peoples."

BREZHNEV'S ELECTION to the largely ceremonial position had been expected since Podgorny's dismissal from the ruling Politburo May 24.

Its significance seems to lie in its acknowledgement of Brezhnev's position as chief of state in title as well as fact.

Party ideologist Mikhail Suslov told the session, "for many years already comrade Brezhnev has been actually coming out before our people and before all the world as the most authoritative representative of the Communist party and the Soviet Socialist state."

Brezhnev, who held the president's post from 1960 to 1964 under Khruschev before his elevation to the top party job, apparently hoped to gain equal status with other world leaders, with whom he must negotiate.

Several East European party leaders also have become heads of state in recent years and Brezhnev had expressed a desire to follow their example.

SOME WESTERN analysts also theorize Brezhnev may begin a slow transfer of power to a younger member or members of the party apparatus while retaining his position as chief of state.

The president's job was almost exclusively ceremonial during Podgorny's 12 years in the post.

But Brezhnev could be relieved of the more mundane tasks of the presidency under the terms of a new constitution to be approved in October. Among other things, the constitution will create a new post, that of first vice president, which could take over such protocol duties as receiving ambassadors and meeting minor heads of state at the airport.

The dour Podgorny was not present at Thursday's session, but he was said to have asked to be relieved of his duties in order to retire.

Toth free to leave Soviet Union

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet KGB secret police told American correspondent Robert C. Toth Thursday their investigation was finished and he is free to leave the Soviet Union.

The 48-year-old veteran Los Angeles Times reporter promptly made plans to leave for London Friday — the day he had originally planned to leave at the end of his three-year tour of duty in Moscow.

Toth, who was arrested last Saturday and accused of receiving secret information from a Soviet scientist, spent a total of 13 hours under interrogation by Soviet police and prosecution officials.

Toth told fellow journalists a KGB officer telephoned him Thursday morning with the news.

"They said I am no longer needed and I can go when I want," Toth said.

The U.S. Embassy in Moscow filed a strong protest with the Soviet Foreign Ministry Tuesday over Toth's treatment, charging the action was "a serious step by Soviet authorities to harrass and intimidate U.S. correspondents in the exercise of their profession."

Toth said his interrogators produced every story he had ever written on Soviet scientific topics and questioned him at length about them.

Jayne files suit against Illinois parole system

Silas Jayne

Millionaire horseman Silas Jayne, in prison for plotting the 1970 murder of his brother, has filed a lawsuit charging the state corrections department's furlough program is discriminatory and unconstitutional.

Jayne, 68, convicted of conspiring to murder his brother and fellow horseman, George, is charging in the class action suit that the department, through its director, Charles J. Rowe, discriminates in the administration of the release program.

The suit, filed June 8 in U.S. District Court in Benton, Ill., also seeks a preliminary and permanent injunction restraining the department from the furlough statute, according to Jayne's attorney, J. Lewis Wingate.

Jayne, 69, is serving a 6- to 20-year sentence in the minimum security Vienna Correctional Center for his role in the Oct. 28, 1970 slaying of his brother. George Jayne was shot to death in his Inverness home during a family birthday gathering.

JOSEPH LaPLACA, whom Jayne hired to execute the killing, and Julius Barnes, the convicted triggerman, also are serving prison terms for their roles in the killing.

All three have appealed their convictions.

Wingate said Jayne has been denied parole four times and has been denied a furlough release "numerous times."

Parole officials have said the denials were made because Jayne's release "would diminish the seriousness of the crime."

The case will be heard in East St. Louis, where civil actions in the Eastern District of Illinois are conducted. Wingate said the suit asks that a three-judge panel be named to hear the case.

RONNIE HOWARD MAY not look old enough to be a director. But he just performed in that role, and helped write the script, too, for "Grand Theft Auto" opening today in Chicago. Howard also stars in the PG film.

More 'happy days' ahead for Howard

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Ronnie Howard is still in the process of growing up. In person his looks fall somewhere between his real age, 23, and the high school adolescent he plays on "Happy Days."

Considering how many of his reruns have appeared on television, he could be 50.

But because at 23 he just completed directing his own film (wrote and starred in it, too), age becomes an extraneous factor.

"It is pretty gratifying — that I've been able to sustain my career," said the sandy haired actor, TV's all-American kid. "But up until now, I've always been playing my own age. At 15 when I shot up three inches, it was OK. Everybody expected it of a kid my age."

Audiences have watched him grow from Opie on "The Andy Griffith Show" into Richie Cunningham on "Happy Days." And in between there have been films — "The Courtship of Eddie's Father," "Music Man" and more recently, "Eat My Dust," to name just three.

MANY CHILD STARS bomb out along the way. Not Howard. He chalks up his longevity to "being crazy about the business" and "luck."

"If I ever needed a certain role, it presented itself. I'd interview and get the part."

Now nothing is that easy, but Howard has been playing the nice guy too long. He doesn't know how to put on airs and make things sound more complicated than they seem. Two years ago this month he married his high school sweetheart, Cheryl, who isn't even in the business. And that says something right there.

He credits his parents for his not becoming spoiled.

"Very early on they never used the word child star to classify me and what I was on 'The Andy Griffith show.' There was never a lot of discussion about my image. They protected me in a real, positive way."

While playing Opie, Howard recalls his parents even turning down some lucrative offers.

"THEY WANTED ME to introduce an Opie line of children's clothes, but it meant weekend public appearances. My parents thought it was more important that I go to a regular school when I wasn't working, and on weekends to play with my friends."

Howard knows he's on the brink of a new age. He can't play the mild-mannered, clean-cut adolescent the rest of his life.

"Everybody gets typecast. I've been fortunate that as the relatively straight, all-American guy, I can still do a variety of roles and be right for it. Though the '50s era was the same, my part in 'American Graffiti' was different than Ritchie Cunningham in 'Happy Days.' Sure, it was subtle, but that's what makes acting," he said.

"I don't mind being the nice guy, levelheaded. But I do have to progress in age, and that will mean sacrificing some good jobs.

"In Grand Theft Auto' (his new film), I play an environmental research major. Age isn't even mentioned. Of course, it's somewhere at college level," added Howard.

SAME THING WITH his role in "The Shootist," a boy part Howard enjoyed because it added a "rebel" dimension to his polite image.

"You never knew for sure how old he was."

And neither age nor experience made a difference in directing.

"Age didn't turn out to be a problem. I was very proud of the way the cast responded to my direction. 'Grand Theft Auto' is definitely a youth-oriented film. It was valuable to have a young person working on it," said Howard.

But what he did have to learn was "organization."

"It was a huge undertaking — a big deal just to live through the first day, and after you lived through that, there were 20 more just like it," recalled Howard.

He wrote "Grand Theft Auto" with his father, Rance Howard. They came up with the title first and stuck a story to it.

Howard sat forward on the couch. He was anxious to talk about his new property that opens today in the Chicago area.

HE PLAYS — yep, you guessed — a red-blooded American kid, who plans to elope with the daughter of a very rich and influential businessman. Papa wants his daughter to marry into a more politically minded, advantageous family. When he steals the keys to his daughter's car, the couple is forced to borrow dad's silver Rolls Royce to drive to Las Vegas and get married.

The father alerts a private investigator (played by Rance Howard), his daughter's intended fiance, the fiance's mother (played by Howard's mother on "Happy Days," Marion Ross), and the chase is on. With a $25,000 reward on the heads of the young lovers, everybody gets involved — the police, the church, even a publicity-minded disc jockey.

"We wanted it to be a satirical look at how some people try to control other people's lives. Young people are on the run, but they're not outlaws. They're just standing up to their own convictions. All they want to do is get married.

"It's the establishment who steals the cars. But they're not doing it for the money — they're just too emotionally involved," continued Howard, who offered a quick rundown — "the mother steals her butler's Volkswagen, a police officer's car is stolen by a camp preacher — $25,000 will sure buy a lot of Bibles — and the cop in turn commandeers a busload of senior citizens."

The entire chase climaxes in a demolition derby.

"THEY'VE BEEN trying to film a demolition derby for a long time. It's just never been successfully worked into a story. I'm not trying to brag, but this is the best. The stunts are fantastic," said Howard excitedly.

When prodded, Howard said he would play a killer "if a good killer part came along." I don't believe him. I think he felt pressured. Later he talked about one day starting his own production company and the output, he's quite sure, would be nothing above PG.

"Luckily I've been successful in both television and films, and I think I have a good idea of what kind of entertainment people like. One thing, they're snubbing some pictures — no matter how many big stars. If they don't like a story, they're not interested," he said.

And we talked about what is happening to "Star Wars" and what isn't to "Black Sunday." I began to think that maybe luck is on Howard's side.

"My mother said I was born with a four-leaf clover in my mouth. Bad things on the surface have always turned out to be pluses."

Then he told a story, what happened to him in Los Angeles the day before he arrived in Chicago.

"I had an auto accident. I was driving Cheryl's car and I wrecked it. I never take her car — maybe once a month, if that. We changed insurance companies a year ago and when I got home I found out my car wasn't even insured."

Perchance there is an angel of mercy watching over Ronnie Howard — a red-blooded, All-American one.

Move over, Lassie, this lovable, pampered mutt is now top dog

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Another reporter in the office offered to accompany me to see Benji because he once interviewed Secretariat and walked away with a lot of quotable "neighs."

I was meeting the dog star for breakfast and because the posh Continental Plaza was the place, I looked forward to steak and eggs.

I was close. Benji arrived on leash, jumped up and took her seat (that's right, Benji's a girl) at the head of the table as if she belonged there, and guess what?

Benji got the steak; I got the eggs.

And as the morning wore on, I realized I had only one thing up on Benji. I could call out my own order. Her master/trainer Frank Inn selected her meal — "steak and cottage cheese for Benji, please."

BUT SHE HAD two up on me—a bulging bank account and nationwide love and affection.

The waitresses (I counted five at once) went gaga over Benji, giving her hugs and pats that not even Robert Redford would draw.

Who could deny them? I did plenty of petting and ohing myself. Those soulful adoring eyes are no figment of the camera. They could curl up the meanest of frowns.

Benji was in Chicago last weekend to promote the opening of her new movie, "For the Love of Benji." The day before she kicked the first ball at the Chicago Sting's soccer game and after breakfast was on her way to visit with fans at Woodfield Shopping Center.

It was 8 a.m. Benji was still a bit groggy. She occasionally lay down in her chair whenever the conversation lagged, but only for a moment.

THIS IS THE 2-year-old daughter of the original Benji, who was a regular on "Petticoat Junction" and initiated the Benji movement with the title picture.

"The first Benji (my dining partner's father) is now 17 years old and retired," said Inn. "Out of three litters this one was the best look-alike."

Benji's soft, golden brown coat is distinguished by black splashes on both floppy ears.

"She's loved by a lot of people and she's used to it. She expects it and likes it," Inn continued explaining Benji's good nature.

"He's a little restless right now, but that's because she knows steak is on the way." (At home chicken is occasionally substituted. Benji doesn't care for most junk food, but she does go for ice cream.)

THE EVOLUTION of Benji is a real-life rag to riches story, a Disney tale come true that originated out of Mulberry Square Productions in Dallas. Producer-writer Joe Camp went from advertising to making movies because "there was a shortage of family films with a high entertainment value."

Inn, who discovered Tramp for "My Three Sons," Cleo for "The People's Choice" and Arnold the pig for "Green Acres," received a call one day from the Burbank Animal Shelter.

"The man said 'we have a cute puppy here and if someone doesn't give it a home you know what will happen.' Not only do I like puppies, but we discovered Tramp that very way," said Inn, who went to the shelter and brought Benji (the first Benji) home with him.

A short time later a casting call went out for 50 dogs to appear in a segment of "Beverly Hillbillies." Benji was one of them. He followed up that cameo per-

JOE CAMP AND Frank Inn, while on film location in Greece, plan Benji's acceptance speech for the AGVA Animal Act of the Year Award. Benji could care less.

THE IRRESISTIBLE face that has captured American hearts. The daughter of the original Benji stars in her own movie, "For the Love of Benji."

New painting at Institute

A rare painting by the 18th century French artist Jean-Honore Fragonard, titled "Portrait of a Man as Don Quixote," is a new acquisition of the Art Institute of Chicago.

Donors are Mr. and Mrs. Leigh B. Block who presented the gift in honor of John Maxon, former vice president for collections and exhibitions, who died last month.

The portrait is one of a series of 14 fantasy figures executed by Fragonard around 1769 and considered by many to be among his most brilliant achievements. Most of the subjects represent contemporaries or friends of the artist.

The donated painting has been in Mr. and Mrs. Block's private collection for 25 years. The couple are both trustees of The Art Institute.

'For the Love of Benji'

Huggable hero triumphs again

by BOB FRISK

Benji is back, and that means you can see at least one movie this year that actually makes you feel good.

There are no hidden messages in the plot, no words or scenes that try to shock. There are no disasters.

It's just a good G movie, and that really says it all.

The floppy eared little dog who shows feelings better in his eyes than any words can speak returns to the screen with the release of "For the Love of Benji."

If you enjoyed the happy, heart-warming story of Benji in the first feature-length film, you should make plans now to see the latest adventure of America's "most huggable hero."

Bob Frisk, sports editor of The Herald, is a fan of Benji's and a firm believer in G-rated films.

Review

THE BENJI OF THAT first film is 17 years old and retired to splendor, but the two-year-old Benji who romps through Greece also completes an amazing range of emotions that match the action.

The movie portrays Benji's struggles during an excursion through the islands and ruins. It's a country with an uncomfortable feeling, and Benji expresses that same feeling.

The plot is nothing great, but how vital is the plot in a Benji movie? There isn't much dialog but there isn't any great need. The youngsters in the audience may be a little confused at the beginning, but that doesn't detract one bit.

Benji just happens to be going to the right place at the right time, and for security reasons she carried the coordinate code of a secret meeting with a very important scientist.

BENJI MISSES a plane change in Athens, and the confusion begins. Suddenly, this delightful little dog has a drifting, vagabond life on the streets. Everybody's looking for her, the good guys and the bad guys.

A camera is always maintained at the dog's eye-level, creating a visual charm that blends beautifully with the story.

There's really no great need to compare the two Benji films because they are such wonderful family entertainment. How can you dislike these movies?

"For the Love of Benji" reaches out and touches your emotions just as "Benji" did the first time around. You actually feel the love, concern, frustration and excitement of Benji as she searches for something familiar to hang onto.

THANKS, MULBERRY Square Productions.

Thanks, Joe Camp for creating the Benji films and Frank Inn for training this remarkable little animal.

But, most of all, thanks, Benji, for bringing some happiness to the screen again.

You get four stars (or should we say barks?) for this one.

Lovable, pampered mutt is now top dog

formance with regular guest shots on "Petticoat Junction." Still, he never would have achieved super stardom if it hadn't been for Camp.

"CAMP CONTACTED me to see if I had a dog that could honestly express emotion. I didn't think it was possible but I said we would give it all we've got. Camp fell in love with Benji just like everyone else has," said Inn.

"An actor who is on screen for an hour and a half without saying anything has to have an expressive face," answered Camp. And to capture that face, the camera crew went down on their hands and knees to Benji's level, a labor of love as significant as submerging for "The Deep."

"Now that's enough, or you're going to get fat like me," said Inn, the rotund, moustached animal lover who may not watch his own figure but keeps his dog slim and trim.

Inn had no intention of becoming an animal trainer — not until a serious automobile accident left him confined for a time in a wheel chair. He was given a puppy named Jeep.

"I spent a great deal of time learning to communicate with that dog," he said.

INN LATER worked under Henry East with Asta, the dog in the "Thin Man" series. He helped train Daisy for the "Blondie" films and spent 13 years working with dog trainer Rudd Weatherwax and his star, Lassie.

Inn has received more than 40 Patsy awards presented to top animal stars. Benji was the second dog named to the American Humane Association's Animal Actor Hall of Fame. You can guess the first. Lassie.

But Inn experienced the high point of his carter when Lassie (the sixth generation) and Weatherwax attended Benji's opening in Dallas. Lassie presented the smaller dog with a silver mesh collar inscribed "To Benji from Lassie." But what Weatherwax said was even better.

"He said Benji is the best. He can really act and show emotion. That made me feel very good," said Inn, patting his treasure.

"There is nothing miraculous about training a dog. It's just common sense. But you can't train a dog too long at a time or he'll never learn to like it. Benji is a very tired dog right now. But she really likes what she's doing."

Ironically Benji would never be accepted into a predigreed dog show because she has no papers. Inn labels her "an all-American dog of definite, questionable heritage." In other words, Benji's a mutt.

"I ALWAYS SAY you don't have to be an Irishman to be a policeman. Environment, education and opportunity have everything to do with it. A lot of dogs are smart; they just don't have to prove it."

At home Benji's all dog, sleeping between her master and the Mrs. and occasionally accompanying them on fishing trips. But she has the same trouble of all super stars — trying to remain anonymous. Trips are often delayed by people recognizing her — "Look at that cute dog. It's Benji."

And there was a steady stream of people filing by all through breakfast. Kids, especially, thought their Chicago vacation was really made after a chance audience with their favorite screen canine.

Inn handed out postcard-size colored photographs of Benji with paw prints on the reverse side and occasionally interrupted a hungry Benji to ask her to woof, yawn or say her prayers.

"Show the people how much you like getting fan mail," said Inn, handing Benji a letter to post. The dog ran over to one of her props, a mail box, opened the door and placed the letter inside.

"Now raise the flag so the postman will know to come."

Benji complied and returned to her seat. I could be wrong. But I don't think a "dog-gone" thing has gone to her head.

CAMP PLANS TO continue releasing one picture a year with "MC and the Legend" already scheduled for June of 1978. It's unlikely, however, that he will make another "Benji" movie.

"I'm not going to get caught ripping the public off by captalizing on Benji's name. If you keep an eye on the dollars, it will take away from the entertainment value. If people want another movie, then we'll attempt to come up with another story, but it will have to be able to stand on its own."

While Benji is leading the life of Riley, she's still working—overtime most days. But there's one little piglet who is for sure living in California splender. That's Arnold.

Said Inn, "Arnold is a retired ham. He fixed it so I ate so high on the hog I began to look like him."

No wonder Inn has a soft spot for animals. No wonder animals like him.

Movie guide

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments, based on reports of the Independent Film Journal, for selected films of interest to readers.

"Cross of Iron" — Sam Peckinpah's graphically violent tale of military savagery on the Russian Front as a glory-obsessed German officer fights for his country's top combat honor at any cost. The moral and message may be black-and-white but the action is vibrantly, sometimes beautifully filmed and generates much gut involvement. (R).

"Audrey Rose" — Anthony Hopkins tries to convince Marsha Mason and John Beck that their daughter is the reincarnation of his own child who was killed in a fiery car crash. (PG).

"The Farmer" — A decorated World War II hero (Gary Conway) faces a bitter, violent homecoming when he tangles with mobsters. The blood flows more freely than the simplistic storyline. (R).

"Islands in the Stream" — Hemingway's posthumously-published novel about a secluded artist whose emotional isolation is shattered when his three sons arrive for a visit has been given emotional treatment in an old-fashioned drama that starts brilliantly but dissipates into too many tangets to be fully satisfying. George C. Scott is superb as the semi-autobiographical hero. (PG).

"The Late Show" — Murder, convoluted mystery and bizarre romance mingle with black comedy in Robert Benton's offbeat but surprisingly involving tale of an over-the-hill private eye (Art Carney) who sets out to solve his partner's murder while being alternately aided and exasperated by wigged-out client Lily Tomlin. (PG).

"Annie Hall" — Woody Allen's most serious comedy yet is also uproarious most of the way, as a successful commedian named Alvy Singer battles other peoples pretensions and his own insecurities while falling in and out of love with the title character played by Diane Keaton. Some say it is his best film to date. (PG).

"Rocky" — Sylvester Stallone wrote the script and stars as the title character in this small, unpretentious and genuinely involving story of a local clubhouse prizefighter who gets a chance-of-a-lifetime shot at the world heavyweight title and finds love and self-respect along the way. (PG).

Chicago Symphony in first opera recording

Bill Gowen

DISCovering classics

The Chicago Symphony's first venture into a complete operatic recording is now in area stores.

"The Flying Dutchman," the 1841 adaptation by Richard Wagner of the legend of the Dutch captain who has been cursed to sail the seas forever in search of his beloved, is Sir Georg Solti's culminating chapter in his nearly complete cycle of all the Wagner operas.

His recordings of Wagner, more than anything else, brought Solti to worldwide acclaim in the early 1960s, leading to subsequent appointments as head of the Royal Opera in London and of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

SOLTI, WHO HAS done his previous Wagner recording in Vienna, desired to do at least one opera with "his" orchestra. The present set (London OSA 13119, three discs) is the fruit of those dreams.

I heard one of the May 1976 Orchestra Hall performances of "The Flying Dutchman" that immediately preceded this recording, made in Medinah Temple under producer Ray Minshull. I still regard that performance as one of my biggest thrills in a concert hall.

But opera is the hardest type of music to record because of the necessary balance of solo, orchestral and (in this case) choral forces into a final product that brings out the drama and still "sounds" right in the typical living room.

A live performance is fleeting; what is great to the ears at that time may not be when recorded. Mistakes can be edited or replayed, but in a medium like opera that depends largely upon the singers, weaknesses, will be greatly amplified on a record.

MOST OF SOLTI'S passage through the Wagner operatic repertory was planned strictly for recording, using the internationally renowned Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra and soloists.

Solti wanted to record one Wagner opera with the Chicago Symphony, however, and the work was scheduled as a pair of nonsubscription concerts last year.

The same cast singing the concerts appears on the records: British baritone Norman Bailey as The Flying Dutchman; tenor Martti Talvela as Daland; soprano Janis Martin as Daland's daughter, Senta; tenor Rene Kollo as Senta's lover, Erik; tenor Werner Krenn as The Steersman; and mezzo-soprano Isola Jones as Mary.

Several of them are outstanding: Talvela, who has recorded with Solti and the CSO previously, and Ms. Martin, in particular. Kollo and Krenn also hold up their ends quite well.

Bailey, however, in the title role, doesn't possess the heavy baritone needed to be convincing. The notes are all sung well, but when he sings his two famous duets, first with Daland and then with Senta, he is overmatched.

BAILEY DOESN'T lack international stature. He's appeared at the Wagner Bayreuth Festival for nearly a decade and recently recorded "Die Meistersinger" in Vienna with Solti. I feel this role was simply not suited to his voice.

Ms. Jones, a member of the Chicago Symphony Chorus since 1969, has a relatively minor role as Senta's nurse. But the role has one major scene, the Act Two Spinning Song. Ms. Jones has problems being heard against her symphony chorus colleagues. Microphone placement could be at fault, but the lack of a strong characterization by Mary in this scene dampens its effect.

So much for the quibbles. Aside from those two singing parts, the set is magnificent. Top honors go to the chorus, prepared to the usual high degree of professionalism by Margaret Hillis.

SPECIAL MENTION should go to the chorus' German diction coach, Frau Gertrude Grisham. Each word is enunciated precisely, and that's no mean feat in some of the women's parts, particularly the spinning chorus.

The orchestra is superb, as usual. In eight years under Solti, it would be hard to find either a live performance or a recording that is below the highest level of achievement. This first-ever opera project is no exception.

Opera recordings are rarely made today in the United States because the tremendous overhead (cost of musicians' and technicians' salaries) often exceeds projected revenues from sales of the album.

Solti and the Chicago Symphony have gambled that the cost of this one will be more than made up. Despite the minor reservations listed, I believe it will, too.

BOB MANGELSDORF interrupts dance act of Bonnie Lovitz and Jim Curren in "Finian's Rainbow" which opens tonight at Cutting Hall, Palatine. Produced jointly by Music On Stage and Palatine Park District, the musical may be seen Fridays and Saturdays through July 2. (See Billboard)

Three new offerings

No summer slow down for theater

Ordinarily live theater slows down to accommodate the lazy days of summer. This year may prove to be different. Just last week three new productions opened.

Unfortunately, what I looked forward to seeing the most was the biggest disappointment of the trio.

Jean Marsh of "Upstairs, Downstairs," fame, opened Academy Festival Playhouse's new summer season at Barat College with George Bernard Shaw's "Too Good To Be True." What should have been a very endearing classical, sputtered after the first act and quickly died altogether. Granted this is not one of Shaw's better or more noted works. It is one of his late works, written in 1932.

A microbe, one of Shaw's non-human fanciful characters, sums it up nicely at the end of the first act. "The play is virtually over, but the characters will discuss it at great length for two more acts."

JEAN MARSH IS commendable as the free-spirited, cockeyed lass disguised as a nurse, but the story itself — after the first intermission, of course, is hardly worth tuning into.

NATALIJA NOGULICH protects her roommate, Michiael Sassone, from an angry friend, Patricia Stewart. The scene is from "Mattress," a one-act comedy now at St. Nicholas Theater.

Genie Campbell

Night out

Switch the channels this September and you'll be able to see Lynn Redgrave tackle another Shaw, when she opens the Goodman season in the title role of "Saint Joan."

I was suspicious of seeing "Merry-Go-Round" that initiated the summer season at First Chicago Center downtown, because its billing seemed much too good to be true. The musical revue arrived from a previous run at Pheasant Run Playhouse.

But "Merry-Go-Round" lands right on target — two acts of delightful, pick-me-up songs conceived by Don Tucker who must be in his glory, sitting at the keyboard and occasionally introducing one or another of his numbers when an introduction is warranted. Mostly it's not required, as Leslie Easterbrook, David King, Mary Murray and Ronald Young divide up a medley of bittersweet, comical lyrics to bridge the middle-age gaps.

THE CHOREOGRAPHY could be improved. I'm sure it will be. And the trite title is a discredit to the originality of the songs.

Perhaps many people are not even aware of St. Nicholas Theatre Company located on the near north side of Chicago, but the theater has been doing great things over the past year. Extended through the end of July is "The Water Engine," written byDavid Mamet, the playwright who has been receiving all the attention of late for his Broadway hit, "American Buffalo." "The Water Engine" is performed Thursday through Sunday at 2851 N. Halsted.

But if you make it Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday of next week, you'll see a new one-act by St. Nicholas playwright-in-residence, William H. Macy. It's called "Mattress," and as this title appropriately suggests, the playlet is about relationships and living together, and what happens when one partner takes advantage of the other.

Though sometimes over zealous in its approach, there are some very touching, very real moments in the play. The price is right, $2.50, and fortunately the theater is now air-conditioned.

THEATER NOTES: The title of the new Liza Minnelli-Barry Nelson musical has been changed from "In Person" to "Shine It On." It opens at the Shubert Theater, Chicago, for two weeks beginning July 5. Written especially for Miss Minnelli by George Furth, "Shine It On" will continue to Broadway this fall.

Due to brisk ticket sales, "Vanities" has been extended at Drury Lane Theatre/Water Tower Place through the summer.

"Outward Bound" opened Wednesday at the newly restored Woodstock Opera House in Woodstock and Barbara Eden will star in Noel Coward's comedy, "Blithe Spirit" at Marriott's Lincolnshire Theatre beginning next Tuesday.

At Country Club Comedy Theatre in Mount Prospect, the comedy, "The Moon is Blue" is now on stage through Aug. 7.

JEAN MARSH STARS in "Too Good to Be True," opening production of the 10th anniversary season of Academy Festival Playhouse.

Summer art, craft fairs open to area exhibitors

Three community art groups planning summer shows are offering artists and craftsmen space to exhibit their work.

The seventh annual art fair sponsored by the Community Arts League of Wheeling-Buffalo Grove is Aug. 7, to be held in conjunction with the Wheeling Historical Society's Brat and Beer Fest. A new location, Chevy Chase Country Club, will furnish a scenic setting for the show.

The fair is open to area artists who specialize in painting, drawing, prints, pottery, sculpture, photography and selected crafts. Deadline for entry is July 10. Mrs. Sylvia Westgard, 537-3871, or Mrs. Jean Bruhn, 537-0760, may be called for details.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Art Guild's sixth annual "Art at the Market" is Sept. 11 at Arlington Market. The show is limited to oils, watercolors and acrylic painting, sculpture and crafts. Cash prizes will be awarded.

Interested exhibitors may contact the guild by calling 358-9096 or 255-8197.

New officers of the Arlington Art Guild are Hazel Herter, president; Thelma Spain and Arlyn Miner, vice presidents; Cal Bonnivier and Leslie Williams, secretaries; and Beverly Galandak, treasurer.

A THIRD SHOW this summer, the fifth annual Bensenville Art Festival, is planned for July 10 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Village Hall grounds, Church and Irving Park roads.

For the juried show, the committee asks that artists and craftsmen who wish to exhibit send three slides to Marcia Small, 360 Hawthorne, Bensenville, 60106. Private jurying may be arranged by calling Mrs. Small at 766-3740.

The festival is sponsored by Friends of the Arts, an affiliate of Bensenville Community Library and the Village of Bensenville.

Theater class at Woodfield

St. James-Christie Theatre School at Woodfield Shopping Center will offer new theater classes for children and youths beginning June 28 and continuing for five weeks.

Creative dramatics and puppets is a class for children ages 4 to 8. A drama workshop for those 9 to 16 years of age includes acting and makeup.

Anyone interested may call 383-6069, 697-5419 or 777-7662 for registration information.

St. James-Christie Youth Theatre will present "Sound of Music" June 25-26 at 2 p.m. in the Schaumburg Room at Woodfield mall. Admission is $1.75-$3.75. A preview will be given on Woodfield's Grand Court Tuesday from 6:30 to 7 p.m.

Don Rickles at Mill Run

'Mr. Warmth' knocks 'em cold

by BOB GALLAS

Review

"Mr. Warmth" has never been warmer.

Comedian Don Rickles is back, sharpening his tongue to SRO crowds at the Mill Run Theatre in Niles as he continues to prove that people love to laugh at themselves.

Joined on the bid with singer Vic Damone, Rickles kept them laughing for more than an hour at his opening Monday with rapid-fire one-liners on any subject:

- On Dean Martin — "I was at his wedding when he married the 9-year-old."
- On show business — "Show business is my life. It was either this or count suits for my uncle."
- On his daughter — "How do you tell an 11-year-old she's out of your will?"

Those jokes may suffer in the translation because Rickles has a style that is unique. Indeed his mere entrance on stage brought down the house which seemed eager to laugh at his every move. For everyone who is turned off by Rickles' insulting style of humor, there are probably two or three devoted fans who would laugh at Rickles reading the phone book.

PERHAPS THE biggest tribute to the comedian came at a closing night at one of his previous Mill Run engagements. After six or seven nights of watching Rickles' act, the band still laughed uncontrollably through his final show.

Every time Rickles goes out on stage the act is different, yet the same. He still uses lines he used 10 years ago — "Is the colored guy laughing? If not, break into a couple of verses of 'Glory, Glory Halleluhah' " — and his act is obviously structured, yet every new crowd brings new people to insult, therefore, new material.

One common thread almost always runs through his performance — those laughing the hardest are those bearing the brunt of his insults. For the true Rickles fans, his engagement, which ends Sunday, is much too short.

THE MONDAY NIGHT curtain was held 22 minutes due to opening night problems which were partly caused by the Sunday night holdup of Damone's music arranger and conductor, Norman Geller. The robbers not only got Geller's money, watch and ring, plus Damone's golf clubs, but also made off with the show's music arrangements.

Other arrangements were hastily flown in from the West Coast arriving just hours before curtain time, but Damone's opening act didn't suffer at all. In fact the well-known crooner has never been in better voice.

His act of 14 songs ran the gamut from his hits such as "Our Love Affair" and "In The Still of the Night" to the classic "Somewhere Over the Rainbow" to more modern renditions such as Barbra Streisand's "Evergreen."

Go on board for seafood dining

Featuring:
The Rusty Scupper

There's a lot to be said for a restaurant that features a warm, comfortable atmosphere and service with a smile. If you can watch your dinner wave a claw at you just moments before you eat it, so much the better.

The Rusty Scupper on East River Road in the O'Hare Plaza is just such a place. The decor resembles the interior of a ship with hardwood floors, domed ceilings and a large paddle that serves as a menu, but hanging plants and large, brightly flowered seat cushions help keep you from getting claustrophobia.

Service is also efficient, but the real appeal of the Rusty Scupper is the tank of live Maine lobsters that greets diners as they walk in.

After all, it isn't often that lobster on the menu means more than a frozen tail for $9.95. Here, you do pay $12.50, but as my New England-bred friend pointed out, the large plate filled only with a bright red lobster was well worth the price.

THE RUSTY SCUPPER'S emphasis is on seafood, and the fish offerings range from Boston scrod, $4.95, and red snapper, $5.95, to shrimp teriyaki, $5.95 and Alaskan king crab legs, brochette, $5.95.

But it also offers prime rid in two cuts, $6.75 and $7.75; three steak choices; and my own choice of kushiyaki, marinated chicken and sirloin brochette, $5.59.

Needless to say, my friend was pleased with his lobster. His only complaint was the small cup of somewhat weak butter and the lack of plastic "bib" to protect his shirt. I, too, was satisfied with the kushiyaki, though the steak and chicken portions were too small for anyone but a child's appetite.

One big plus at the Rusty Scupper is the steaming pot of soup included with the 12 entrees. It was minestrone the evening we dined, and with an air-conditioning duct blowing full force nearby, we appreciated its all-you-can-eat basis.

Bill o' fare

ALSO INCLUDED with Rusty Scupper dinners are fresh loaves of hot bread and an unexciting but adequate salad bar, both offering unlimited seconds.

Baked potatoes are on an a la carte basis at the Rusty Scupper, 50 cents, but with the other extras we didn't miss them.

My friend and I finished our meal with a slice of cheese cake that looked suspiciously like Sara Lee, $1.25, and a highly touted "Hawaiian" coffee that cost and tasted the same as Mrs. Olsen's.

The Rusty Scupper is open for lunch Monday through Friday and dinner everyday.

—Laura Schmalbach

Strauss trades Rudy for Joe, Jr.

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—Peter Strauss has more confidence today than two years ago when he began what has been one of America's most recent television infatuations: "Rich Man, Poor Man," books one and two.

The made-for-television movie, that was continued as a regular series this past season, made the 29-year-old Strauss an instant success. Today he is an actor of deep thought and concern who chooses to be selective about his roles.

Strauss says he turned down $1 million offered by ABC to continue in the role of Sen. Rudy Jordache in "Rich Man, Poor Man: Book III." The character was violently killed and the series terminated, much to the public's dismay.

"I LOST WHAT I felt was a good friend. But Rudy Jordache is dead and he's not going to return as the bionic senator," Strauss said during the opening day of ABC's fall season premiere trip for television writers.

"I decided that the time had come for the character to die. I didn't like the direction the show was taking and I didn't want to leave it in limbo half way through the next year," he said. "The money they offered me to continue wasn't going to make me happy doing something that I didn't like.

"Book two was not as good as the original, but we tried awfully hard and I'm satisfied with that."

An articulate Strauss, his hair sun-streaked, just completed filming a two-hour movie that will air this fall, entitled "Young Joe, the Forgotten Kennedy." He portrays Joseph Kennedy Jr., the eldest of four sons who was groomed to be the heir to the Kennedy throne, but who met with a violent death during World War II.

"WHAT DREW ME to the project was that a majority of people knew nothing about Joseph Kennedy Jr. Information about his death was only declassified by the government in 1968. His plane did not crash by accident and he was not just shot down. He was assigned to a top secret mission knowing there was little chance of him surviving," Strauss said.

He was asked to fly a B-24 bomber, filled with explosives, over a V-1 ricket development site in Germany. Kennedy and his crew were to parachute before a B-25 bomber, following them by remote control, would crash the lead plane into the rocket site. Something, a mystery to this day, went wrong and Kennedy went down with his plane.

"He was against the war, but when he became a part of it, he decided this mission was just something he had to do to prove himself to his father, his family and himself," Strauss said.

The story of Joseph Kennedy Jr., based on Hank Searls' book, "The Lost Prince," is that of "the last remaining romantic heroes out of World War II," Strauss said.

"HE WAS IN love with three things a Kennedy was not supposed to be in love with: An older woman, a married woman and a woman who was a Protestant," Strauss said. Kennedy's mystery love remains anonymous, both in Searles' book, where she is identified as the lady with the blue eyes, and in the movie, where she is called Vanessa.

"He was a man who could go to a room alone and cry quietly because he couldn't achieve something, and then go out the next day and achieve it," he said. "The almost-superhuman demands his father made of him were underlined with love."

The veil of secrecy the Kennedy family and government has cast over Joe Kennedy's life and death will be lifted in a "very human" approach to the man, "not the family myth," he said.

PETER STRAUSS

Searls and producers of the movie have conferred with the Kennedy family about the film, and the family asked to know who would portray their Joe, Jr. in advance of the filming. Although Ted Kennedy was told about the story line, he refused to read the script. He did not want to sanction the final product, which may eventually be tied with the Joseph Kennedy Memorial Hospital for retarded children, in compliance with the family's wishes, Strauss said.

THERE HAVE BEEN problems in the months of filming in Washington, D.C. The leading lady, Barbara Parkins, recently came down with the chickenpox and stalled progress; crews had to hunt for the only existing B-24 bomber in this country; and Strauss barely stomached a nauseating flight in a plane without a cockpit for one of the movies's opening scenes.

Most of the work on "Young Joe, the Forgotten Kennedy" has been painstaking for Strauss who mastered the family dialect and studied the relatively few books written about Joseph Kennedy, Jr. and the colorless films made about the family.

"I had to find things in myself I could use to create the character of Joseph Kennedy and to get at the heart of the relationship that he had with his father," Strauss said. "There are many beautiful moments in the fiml where the human nature of great men shows through."

TV NOTES:

• Brandon Stoddard, vice president of dramatic programs and motion pictures for ABC television, said the network will present six more hours of Alex Haley's Roots," tracing what happened to his ancestors from where they left off with "Roots: I" The sequel, described as a sort of "detective story for his past nearly ending in Heley's suicide," will air in 1979.

• ABC will present 22 made-for-television movies in the 1977-78 season that will include "The Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald," the story about what might have taken place had Oswald gone to trial. The film, which stars Ben Gazzara and Lorne Greene, is being shot on location in Dallas, Tex. Another film, "A Dangerous Love," starring Linda Pearl and Dezi Arnez Jr., is a drama about black market babies.

Margaret gushes, as interviewer mushes

Watching Sandy Hill interview Margaret Trudeau on ABC's "Good Morning America" the other day produced a sensation akin to Oscar Levant's answer when asked if he ever watched Dinah Shore on television. "No," he replied, "I'm a diabetic."

I have not seen so many dimples displayed since Shirley Temple signed her first long-term contract at Twentieth Century Fox. In the characteristic fashion of the emerging school of gush interviewing, Ms. Hill let Ms. Trudeau get away with murder.

Ms. Trudeau recently separated from her husband, Pierre, who, when he is not minding their three kids, moonlights as Prime Minister of Canada. She used most of the interview to complain about the treatment she has received from the press.

Here is part of the exchange between Ms. Hill and Ms. Trudeau.

MS. TRUDEAU: "I tend to keep the press at a distance, you know, and I don't really react to what they say. I react to what I feel, more."

Ms. Hill: "That takes a great deal of strength because sometimes the barbs are very pointed."

Ms. Trudeau: "Yes, well, not only pointed, they can be very vicious and very hurtful and damaging. But I think I've learned a lot of lessons about the press and the ability that they have to use people in order to sell papers and make sensational stories. And I'm very offended, sort of insulted, that they would treat Pierre and I in the way they have."

It was that way throughout the first part of the interview without Ms. Hill challenging her once on the matter of who used whom. Did the press really use Trudeau all that much or did she use the press?

Ms. Trudeau did not seek to be discreet about her private life. She flaunted it, in Canada and in the United States. And it has not hurt her budding career as a photographer one damn bit. Why did she think she was invited to appear on "Good Morning America" — because she is Canada's answer to Richard Avedon?

SHE WAS ON the show because she has become a celebrity. And she has become a celebrity because she has conducted herself in a manner that did not quite fit the norms that we associate with the conduct of women married to national leaders. The press did not do anything to Ms. Trudeau that she had not already done to herself.

Ms. Hill should have called her on that score. That would not have constituted rudeness; it simply would have been good interviewing.

But she did not. Apart from one solid question as to whether Trudeau thought she was abandoning her children, she threw puff balls that the lady from Ottawa just plain knocked out of the park.

And in the end, Ms. Hill asked Ms. Trudeau: "Youve been through so much to launch this career, to establish it. Do you think it's been worth it?" And Trudeau answered: "Oh, yes. Oh, yes. I feel very confident and positive about my life."

I don't blame her. With interviewers like Hill around, why shouldn't she feel confident?

Huntz, Gabe do 'Dead End' bit

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Huntz Hall and Gabe Dell, two of the three surviving "Dead End" kids, are a pair of guys you wouldn't want to play poker with — not that they're crooked. They just look as if their sleeves are stuffed with aces.

Huntz, who played Dippy, and Gabe, who played T.B. (as in tuberculosis), had lunch together the other day, looking like the cat and the fox from Pinocchio.

They have been great pals — closest of the group — since they costarred in the Broadway version of "Dead End" in 1935.

The only other surviving member of the original gang is Bernard Punsley, now a successful local doctor.

"We don't go to see Punsley," said Gabe. "He might charge us for an office visit."

"I saw Puns 15 years ago and asked him if he could fix my nose," Huntz recalled. "He said, 'I thought I did.' "

"Punsley took a different direction from us," said Gabe, his eyes slightly mad.

Huntz, who has changed little over the years and is simply an older version of Dippy in appearance, is starring in "Quadrangle," which Gabe is directing at the Beverly Hills Playhouse.

WHILE THEY'RE an hysterical twosome off-stage, Gabe and Huntz are not always a smash hit as a performing team. They have, in fact, bombed abysmally.

"We starred together three years ago in 'The Manchu Eagle' " said Huntz, "it was about a Chinese airline."

"That's a lie," Gabe put in. "It was about a poultry engineer and a head waiter. It only played one week in Westwood. It was ahead of its time."

"They'll release it world-wide as soon as it is understood," said Huntz. "They only spent $4 on publicity. It needed at least a hundert gees for publicity."

"But the whole picture only cost $700,000," Gabe remonstrated.

"THAT'S NOT the only unreleased fillum we did," Huntz said, proud of past disasters. "Four years ago we starred in 'The Home Movie.' We did it on weekends and it's still in the trunk of the producer's car."

The other three original gang members were Leo Gorcey (Spit), Billy Halop (Tommy) and Bobby Jordan (Angel).

"I don't say they died under mysterious circumstances," Gabe said. "But each time one of them died they said it was natural causes."

"I hope that natural causes ain't contagious," Huntz said suspiciously.

"It's a toss-up who goes next, me, Huntz or Punsley," said Gabe.

Nine "Dead End" kid films were produced at Warner Bros. and 16 at Universal — few measuring up to the original film which starred Humphrey Bogart.

THE GANG WAS renamed the "Eastside Kids" for another 24 films. An additional 48 "Bowery Boys" pictures were made. Gorcey and Hall were the stars.

"I dropped out because they weren't paying me like they were paying them," Gabe said without malice.

"Leo and I owned a piece of the 'Bowery Boys,' " said Huntz. "But we were never as close as me and Gabe. We're like brothers. Right?"

"Yeah," said Gabe, a little repulsed by the thought. "Our wives didn't like us being so close. They went out and divorced us on the same day in 1953."

HUNTZ LOOKED down his persimmon-shaped schnozz at his companion and then, in a voice minced with superiority, said "I just finished seven months work in 'Valentino' in Europe. Everything was foist class.

"Rudy Nureyev, the ballet dancer, stars in the picture. If he's bad, it's my fault. I taught him everything he knows about acting."

"Huntz is ego-less," Gabe said, rolling his eyes wildly.

"Yea, well, it works both ways. He taught me some toe dancing. And to tell you the truth, he wants to do a ballet production with me. That's a fact."

Gabe choked in a piece of bread and butter and shook his head in disbelief.

"YOU KNOW WE been ripped off all these years," Huntz said agreeably. "Nobody pays us for all those reruns of the gang on television. They play them old movies on 300 stations around the country. We're a cult."

"We had a lot of fun," Gabe said. "It was like having a bunch of brothers."

"Yeah," Huntz said. "I needed that. I was the 14th kid in a family if 16. I had to stand in line for love."

"One of his brothers threw Huntz down the stairs in Brooklyn," Gabe said cheerfully. "That's how he busted up his beak."

Huntz stroked his nose affectionately. "He did me a favor. Without I take a header down the stairs, I'm just another pretty face."

Student aims to skateboard across U.S.

MOUNT CARMEL, Ill. (UPI) — Jack Charlton rolled into this Wabash River town on Illinois' eastern border this week on a skateboard with his sights on Los Angeles and a place in the Guiness Book of Records.

Charlton, 22, a student at UCLA from Canoga Park, Calif., says he has been assured his long-distance skateboard trip that began in Philadelphia May 10 will be a record if he can document it.

The trip should take about 100 days if he averages around 40 miles a day, Charlton estimates.

The trim, muscular 6 footer is equipped with a helmet, elbow pads, front and backpacks and three extra sets of wheels for his skateboard.

One of the toughest things about the trip besides the weather Charlton says, is resisting the tempting ride offers.

"Sometimes when it's dark and no one can see you it's really hard to say no when someone offers you a ride," Charlton said.

He said he picks up his skateboard and walks up steep hills.

He eats most of his meals in restaurants and sleeps along the road at night, he said.

The trip across America on a skateboard will cost him between $1,000 and $1,500, Charlton said. "And it's all out of my own pocket."

Charlton left here Wednesday headed for St. Louis. From there he will aim his skateboard southwest through Oklahoma.

"I just want to set a record and promote skateboarding," said Charlton.

Anniversary pair said vows twice

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Russell

They were too young to obtain a marriage license in Cook County so Edgar Russell and his then bride-to-be, Erma, went to Waukegan to get the license in Lake County and were married there in a civil ceremony May 28, 1927.

The bridal couple then returned to Des Plaines for a religious wedding service in the home of their pastor, the then minister of Emmanuel Lutheran Church.

To celebrate their 50 years of wedded life, the Mount Prospect couple recently repeated their vows before their present pastor, the Rev. W. K. Wobbe, of United Church of Christ, Des Plaines, where the Russells have been members for years.

They also were feted at a 50th anniversary party hosted by their four children at Forest River Civic Hall where 250 of their family, friends and other relatives joined the celebration.

Guests included Edgar's three sisters from Little Rock, Ark., Elsie Rice, Velma Hutchins and Vera Pricket.

Edgar owned his own cement construction company in Des Plaines and then in Mount Prospect for many years, retiring in 1964. The couple has resided in Mount Prospect for about eight years, living in Des Plaines and Park Ridge before that.

Erma was born in Chicago Sept. 18, 1907, but grew up in Maine Township, attending Central School in Des Plaines and Maine Township High School when it was on Thacker Street. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Miller.

Edgar was born May 18, 1907, in Searcy, Ark., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Russell, and attended school there.

The couple's children are Robert Russell, Des Plaines; Wilma Scott and Shirley Bednar, Mount Prospect; and Pearl Steinken, Palatine. There are 18 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Next on the agenda

Fifth Wheelers, 7:45 p.m. Sunday, Trinity Lutheran Church, Algonquin and Wolf Roads, Des Plaines. Play on alcoholism, "Lady on the Rocks," by Maine Township Council on Alcoholism. 437-4408 or 827-7122.

The doctor says

Ankle ulcer results from varicose veins

Is there any cure for a skin ulcer, which is the result of poor circulation. The ulcer is on the top of my husband's foot at the ankle area. He is a victim of strokes.

What needs to be done depends entirely on what is causing the ulcer. I suspect from its location that it is caused by varicose veins, not from inadequate blood flow through the arteries to the foot. If it is arterial disease, the bottom of the foot or the toes are more often affected first.

Varicose ulcers of the ankle area are a complication of varicose veins. The best approach is to decrease the pooling of blood in the lower part of the foot by using support stockings or elastic bandages. Another solution is to get the foot up above the heart level so that the veins drain down hill toward the heart. If a person can stay in bed enough, that will sometimes help heal such an ulcer. The problem is that the bed rest can be harmful too.

A good compromise is to wrap the foot or put on effective support hose before getting out of bed and then when sitting up keep the foot elevated as much as possible.

To give you more information about the treatment of varicose ulcers and the role of surgery in varicose veins I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-8. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

What exactly is cancer? What actually causes it?

Our cells are capable of reproducing themselves. Your skin is a good example. The skin cells constantly produce new cells. The older cells migrate to the surface and are flaked off. The reptiles shed the old skin.

A cancer is nothing more than the normal cell growth gone wild. Let's say it is a cancer of the liver. The liver cells involved become abnormal in that they rapidly reproduce and the new cells are different from the original cell structure of liver cells. Usually the greater the difference is the more malignant the cancer will be.

This cancer would be a primary cancer of the liver. If some of the abnormal cells are carried by the blood or lymph to distant parts of the body they can start another area of cancer growth there. The cells in this new area will be similar or even identical to the cancer cells in the liver. This is a metastasis or spread of cancer. When a pathologist looks at the cancer tissue, regardless of where the tissue comes from he can usually tell where the original or primary cancer started.

We know there are many different things that can cause normal cells to become abnormal and start the wild growth pattern. Tars as found in cigaret smoke is one example. Radiation is another example. At least in some animal experiments virus infections can be a factor. Apparently anything that upsets the cell's normal reproduction cycle is capable of triggering cancer growth. That is why cancer may be several different diseases and may be caused by many factors.

Remedies for scorch are all experimental

Dear Dorothy: What is the best way to remove scorch from a colored fabric? — Dorothy F. Childers

Have to assume you're talking about a mild scorch spot because I know of no way to remove severe scorching. The remedies we have are all experimental. A bleachable fabric can be laundered in hot water, using chlorine bleach. If the fabric is non-bleachable, cover stain with a cloth dampened with peroxide. Cover this with a dry cloth and press with an iron as hot as is safe for the fabric.. Rinse thoroughly, then rub detergent into the stained area while still wet.

Launder. It may have to be repeated. Some have reported making a paste of starch and water, dabbing on and letting dry, then brushing energetically. One reader put a scorched garment in direct sunlight and had total success. If you get to trying this, keep a sharp eye on the garment and grab it off the line the moment the sun has been successful.

Dear Dorothy: Keeping children occupied on auto trips has always been a problem. One that has worked well with our two has been to paste outline maps of the United States on pieces of cardboard. We give one to each child along with a different colored crayon. When cars with out-of-state licenses are spotted, the first to register gets to mark off that state on the map. It keeps them busy and interested for a good long time. — Barbara Garvey

Dear Dorothy: You'll like this one about your favorite household remedy — baking soda. When I get a grease spot on a dress, I rub in baking soda, let it stay awhile, then brush it off. Came in handy the other day when one of the grandchildren touched me with buttery fingers. Saves changing clothes before you're ready. — Mrs. Graham Tyson

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A joking Princess Anne Thursday presented the city of Washington a picture of herself and told the mayor he could add it to the town's "rogue's gallery" of photographs.

Later, Anne, daughter of Britain's Queen Elizabeth, was whisked off to the White House for lunch with President Carter's son, Chip. Anne's husband, Mark Phillips, and Chip's wife, Caron, joined in the meal.

While the two young couples have diverse backgrounds — Plains, Ga. for the Carters and Buckingham Palace for the Phillips — they have fame and family situations in common. Chip and Caron have an infant son, and Anne is pregnant.

THEY FIRST met in London recently when Chip and Caron represented President Carter at Britain's Silver Jubilee ceremonies, celebrating the queen's 25 year reign.

Anne started her day Thursday at City Hall, where Mayor Walter Washington gave her keys to the city.

"I'm very touched," Anne said. "Thank you very much for your kind words of welcome."

Then she gave Washington a picture of herself and her husband, telling the mayor, "I know you must have quite a rogue's gallery of photos by now."

MRS. WASHINGTON presented Anne a crystal cameo likeness of Queen Elizabeth on behalf of the youth in the capital.

The princess, who wore a blue and white dress with matching hat and white gloves and shoes, also visited the Smithsonian Institution to see a special "Silver Jubilee Exhibition" honoring her mother...

Anne is in the United States to unveil a statue of her 18th century ancestor, Queen Anne, during ceremonies in Maryland's Queen Anne County Saturday. The statue of Queen Anne, who granted a charter creating the county in 1706, was sculpted by Elizabeth Gordon Chandler of Old Lyme, Conn.

Anne, who never has enjoyed her press coverage, had to face a mob of reporters Wednesday night while attending a movie at the Kennedy Center to culminate an exhausting first day of her trans-Atlantic visit.

It was 2 a.m. London time when the princess and her husband arrived at the Eisenhower Theater to join other dignitaries in viewing a premiere of the movie "A Bridge Too Far," about a devastating British defeat during World War II.

PRINCESS ANNE of Great Britain, right, is greeted at the White House Thursday by Chip Carter, the President's son, and his wife, Caron, who gave a private luncheon in her honor. The Princess is in this country to attend several events of Queen Anne's County (Md.) annual historic celebration.

Ford will spring decision in 1979

FONTANA, Wis. (UPI) — Ron Nessen, Gerald Ford's White House press secretary, told the Wisconsin State Bar Assn. Thursday Ford probably would not decide whether to run for president again until the spring of 1979.

Nessen told the annual conference he denied with Ford and his wife two weeks ago and that the former president said "maybe" when asked if he would make the run again.

He said Ford likes to put off decisions until he has all the information about a subject.

Nessen attributed Ford's defeat in 1976 to a number of factors, including the bumbling image that television created for him.

Other factors he cited included a dip in the economy, the pardon of Richard Nixon, the decision of a New York court not to permit Eugene McCarthy to place his name on the ballot in that state, the opposition of Ronald Reagan and the underestimating of Jimmy Carter's strength in the South and border states.

Oswald and James Jacoby will help you hold a winning hand in "WIN AT BRIDGE", appearing daily in the HERALD.

IT IS MORE THAN wrought iron and African drums, New Orleans jazz, feathered finery and sorcery. More than a first class funeral with twirling parasols. It is "Fat Tuesday (and all that jazz)," a blaring musical ballet which opened at Wolftrap National Theater in Washington this week. In it is the Harold Dejan's Olympia Brass Band.

'Fat Tuesday' show opens in style

WASHINGTON (UPI)—It is more than wrought iron and African drums, New Orleans jazz, feathered finery and sorcery. More than a first class funeral with twirling parasols.

It is the essence of ethnic Amerilan culture, a New Orleans few ever see. A mood that struts and claps you up the aisle behind the preacher an the brass band.

Red beans and rice, not breakfast at Brennans. Porgy and Bess, Louisiana style.

"FAT TUESDAY (And All That Jazz)," a blaring musical ballet which opened at the Wolf Trap national theater this week, may set Broadway on its educated ear.

The two-act play featuring musicians from New Orleans' Preservation Hall and the Arthur Hall Afro-American Dance Ensemble of Philadelphia goes beyond a glorification of Mardi Gras. It hallows the roots of jazz and black culture.

Put together by the Tennessee Performing Arts Foundation, the show is beginning a U.S. and Canadian tour before heading for New York. It also is being taped at Wolf Trap for broadcast later on public television.

In New Orleans, Fat Tuesday is the last big fling of Mardi Gras, the day before Ash Wednesday and its solemn signal of Lent.

POUNDING AFRICAN drums open the show, which quickly moves to Bourbon Street madness with Harold Dejan's Olympis Brass Band and dancers in spangled costumes by nationally acclaimed designer Elizabeth Roberts.

The hero and heroine are engaged, but fall apart despite black magic and he is killed in a fight at a card game.

In New Orleans, some are sent out in style. And Fat Tuesday culminates in a fine, fine funeral with Father St. John lamenting from the wrought iron pulpit that he is mighty sorry to see Kid Bunky go. But:

"God bless you and let the good times roll."

They rolled offstage at Wolf Trap, Hundreds left their seats and followed the funeral procession up the aisles onto the lawn outside.

"Oh my," gushed an elderly mourner in pink silk and sequins. "Ain't it just nice?"

Remark slows officer's promotion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., Thursday recommended a delay in the scheduled promotion of Lt. Gen. Donn Starry, who stated publicly last week the United States is likely to enter a future Chinese-Russian war.

Hart is a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and he made the recommendation after talking with Committee Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss.

Military promotions, reviewed by the committee and then the full Senate, are usually routinely granted.

BUT STARRY, a three-star general stationed in Germany, could have more problems getting his fourth star because of a speech he made last Friday to the American High School graduating class in Frankfurt.

Starry told the students he expects a Russian-Chinese war within their lifetime and he predicted America would enter the clash to keep either of the communist giants from taking complete control of Asia.

Hart said he was "extremely concerned" about military leaders commenting on international politics.

Army Secretary Clifford Alexander has ordered Starry to report to the Pentagon immediately to discuss the speech.

Arlington Heights youngsters show soccer savvy in exhibition game at Soldier Field.

It's a kick!

It was a thrill that the youngsters will remember for a long time.

Two Arlington Heights soccer teams played in Soldier Field as a preliminary to the Chicago Sting game and put on quite a show.

The Pioneer Warriors beat the Goalies, 1-0, to push their record to 8-1 for the season. The Warriors had won an earlier meeting between the two teams, 4-1.

Alex Skotarek of the Sting was honored by the citizens of Arlington for his role as captain of the United States Cup team, and Mayor James Ryan kicked out the game ball.

Kicking skill with either foot is vital.

Confrontation! Something's gotta give here.

Rally stalls, Cubs beaten

SAN DIEGO — Despite a three-run ninth-inning rally that included Steve Swisher's second homer of the year, the Cubs rediscovered the secret of losing Thursday night, dropping an 8-6 decision to the Padres.

The Cubs, who boarded a bus immediately after the game for the trip to Los Angeles, had a lot to ponder. Their six-game winning streak was, for all practical purposes, terminated in the first inning when three Cubs' errors — two by usually sure-handed Ivan DeJesus — led to a trio of Padre runs, all unearned.

THE VICTIM OF the Cubs' ineptness was righthander Ray Burris, who was gunning for his ninth win but took his sixth loss instead. The tall hurler was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the fourth when the Cubs left the bags loaded.

A DeJesus error on leadoff man Gene Richards' grounder, followed by Gene Tenace's single and another error on the Cub shortstop, loaded the bases for Dave Winfield. The San Diego cleanup man shot a base hit to left field and the Padres led 2-0. A throwing error by third baseman Steve Ontiveros later in the inning allowed the third run to score.

Manny Trillo, who had base hits his first three times up, slammed his fifth homer of the year in the third, but for the most part the Cubs wasted every opportunity to get back into the game.

DeJesus reached on an infield error in the third and Gene Clines sent him to third with a double, but Bill Buckner struck out to end the inning.

IT WAS MORE frustration in the fourth when Bobby Murcer, Jerry Morales and Trillo all singled to fill the bases against Padre starter Bob Shirley. But Ontiveros' smash through the box was knocked down by Shirley, who got a force on Murcer at the plate. George Mitterwald then tapped weakly to the pitcher for another forceout at home before pinch-hitter Bobby Darwin flied out deep to right-center.

Shirley's teammates gave him more offensive support in the third — on George Hendrick's second homer of the series — and in the fourth when Mike Ivie doubled home Richards, who had singled and stolen his second base of the night. This time it was third base, giving the rookie outfielder 19 steals for the year. The second run of the inning scored on Hendrick's infield out.

Padre manager Al Dark pulled Shirley after five innings replacing him with Dave Tomlin. But Shirley, who like Tomlin, is a lefty, lasted long enough to pick up the victory, only the fifth time the Cubs have been beaten by a southpaw.

Tenace hit a homer in the sixth off reliefer Paul Reuschel, extending the lead to 7-1. But the Cubs, after wasting hits by Morales and Trillo in the sixth, managed to close the gap to 7-3 in the seventh. DeJesus tripled to score Jose Cardenal, who had singled as a pinch-hitter. Clines drove home DeJesus with a ground out.

MORALES WILL take a 12-game hitting streak into the Cubs' opener tonight in Los Angeles.

Road trip ends, White Sox win

BOSTON — The White Sox ended a grueling 10-game, four-city road trip on a high note, defeating Luis Tiant and the Boston Red Sox 7-3 Thursday night and now can look forward to plenty of time at home in the spacious confines of Comiskey Park.

Despite a 4-6 record on the road trip, the second-place Sox lost only one game to the division leading Twins, who lead the division by three games.

The Sox will have a chance to rest now as 15 of their next 18 games will be played in Comiskey Park.

STEVE STONE went 7 2/3 innings and became the first Sox pitcher to win seven games Thursday as Lerrin LaGrow picked up his ninth save. Stone is now 7-3. The win snapped a six-game Boston winning streak and a four-game winning streak Tiant, now 4-5, held over the White Sox.

The Sox sent Tiant to the showers with a five run outburst in the seventh inning that broke a 2-2 tie. An intentional walk to fill the bases backfired on the Sox as Kevin Bell stroked a double to drive in two runs after Lamar Johnson had driven in a run with a double.

That knocked out Tiant and brought on reliever Mike Paxton, who served up a single to Jim Essian that drove in two more runs before getting the side out.

The Red Sox scored first on a home run by George Scott, but Oscar Gamble tied the score in the fifth with his 12th home run of the season and that broke Tiant's scoreless inning string at 20 2/3. The Red Sox added a run in the sixth on a homer by Jim Rice, who went 4-for-5, and another in the eighth when they loaded the bases after two out but could score only one run.

RICE SINGLED to lead off the eighth but Stone got out of trouble when Carl Yastremski grounded into a double play. Carlton Fisk then doubled off the left field wall and manager Bob Lemon called in Larry Anderson from the bullpen. However Anderson gave up a run-producing single to Scott, then walked two in a row to load the bases.

That brought in LaGrow who struck out pinch hitter Dwight Evans to end the inning.

SOX SHORTS: The Sox open a five-game series with Oakland at Comiskey Park tonight, returning home from a 10-game road trip with three new faces . . . Bell and Anderson were called up from the minors during the trip and pitcher Don Kirkwood, who'll be coming over from the Angels in the Ken Brett trade, is expected to join the team tonight . . . Essian's two-run single in the seventh extended his hitting streak to 13, longest this season for a Sox player . . . Wilbur Wood will be the starting pitcher tonight for the White Sox against Vida Blue.

Fenway—old-fashioned, charming

The American stadium today, like the motel and supermarket, has become an interchangeable item, right down to the last blade of the AstroTurf.

This is the age of antiseptic sameness, and the new parks all look alike. There's absolutely no character.

The electronic waterfall-and-cartoon marvels that light up when a native son hits a home run may delight many, but the true baseball fan shudders.

The true fan remembers Ebbets Field, the Polo Grounds, Shibe Park, Griffith Stadium, Forbes Field, Crosley Field. The true fan loves Wrigley Field and Comiskey Park and Fenway Park.

AH, FENWAY PARK. Is there anything quite like it?

Is there anything quite like this dapper little park that does not seem out of place surrounded by such proper Bostonians as the Harvard Medical School and Boston Symphony?

If you consider yourself a real baseball fan, you just have to visit Fenway Park. This is history, baseball history. It's like Cooperstown and, yes, even Wrigley Field and Comiskey Park.

The young fan today sees all these new, steel-and-cement multipurpose stadia, built along freeway routes, and has no appreciation for the past, for the game as it was played 20 or 30 or 40 years ago.

I was reminded of Fenway Park's charm this week while watching the White Sox play the Red Sox. Television doesn't do justice to this little bandbox, a Boston artifact, but you do get a feeling for something that is unique and beautiful in its own special way.

Bob Frisk

Sports Editor

FENWAY PARK, built in 1912 and rebuilt in 1934, belongs to the era when the ball park took on the character of its community. Ebbets Field, for example, in an almost mystical sense was Brooklyn.

Fenway Park is Boston, or what Boston used to be. It sits in the Fens area of Back Bay, in what may fairly be termed the cultural preserve of Boston.

Fenway is as historic as Paul Revere's ride — which undoubtedly occurred, according to Red Sox fans, when there wasn't a night game or no one would have shown up to fight the British.

When Fenway Park is filled to capacity it is crowded only to a Boston scale. Capacity is listed at approximately 33,000, making it the smallest stadium in the majors.

Intimacy is the answer, The fans feel involved. They are involved. They are so involved they barely have time to consider they are sitting in noncontoured seats with little leg room.

IT HAS BEEN said that Fenway was constructed by a couple of moon-lighting architects who stopped for a couple belts before spreading out their plans, but every other park should be so old-fashioned.

The left-field wall, known more or less affectionately as the Green Monster, came into being in 1934. Has a detail of design of any other park influenced the baseball played there as much as the wall has influenced the personality of the Red Sox?

The wall is 37 feet tall capped by a screen that extends 23 feet It is 315 feet from the plate to the left-field foul line.

The temptation must be awesome to the batter. Only the most self-disciplined hitter can rid himself of the idea that a routine fly ball will fall for a home run.

Hitters and fans love the wall. Pitchers hate it — with a passion.

NO LEAD IS safe in Fenway Park. The American League record of 17 runs in one inning was set there. In 1961 the Red Sox were trailing 12-5 with two outs in the ninth. They scored eight runs to win, 13-12. There have been many other incidents where the wall played a major factor.

Fenway Park is a place where baseball is still fun and games, and that says a lot today. It is everything a stadium of the 1970s could never be. It has ludicrous dimensions but it does more for baseball than all the domed stadiums and animated message boards combined.

If other parks promote baseball as a prime-time sitcom, Fenway stages baseball in the style of the Public Broadcasting System.

SIU rallies to eliminate Cal State-LA

OMAHA — Jim Reeves hammered a two-run homer to give Southern Illinois a 9-7 victory over California State — Los Angeles Thursday in the 31st College World Series.

Reeves' blast capped a five-fun eighth inning, which included a two-run double by Craig Robinson and a run-scoring single by Jim Robinson. The loss eliminated California State — Los Angeles from the series.

The Diablos took an early 6-0 lead in the third on a home run by Rob Hayne over the 370-foot leftfield wall. Sonny Garza had a three-run triple in the first inning and Gary Adair and Darrell Brown both connected for run-scoring triples in the second.

CALIFORNIA STATE — Los Angeles closed the season with a 42-22 record and Southern Illinois, 3-1 in the series, advanced to the fifth round.

Southern Illinois' George Vukovich, who lives in Arlington Heights, was named to the second team outfield of the All-American Team of the American Assn. of College Coaches Thursday. Awards were given in conjunction with the World Series.

Bob Horner knocked in two runs to pace Arizona State to a 6-2 win over South Carolina in the other College World Series game Thursday.

Arizona State struck for three runs in the fifth to break a 2-2 tie. Pitcher Ed Lynch walked Jamie Allen with the bases loaded before Horner connected with a two-run single to give the Sun Devils a 5-2 advantage.

South Carolina took an early 1-0 lead when Mark Van Bever singled in Bart Murphy in the third inning, but the Sun Devils went ahead in the bottom of the third on a run-scoring triple by Rick Peters and a throwing error.

O rare Ernie Banks!

Cub Hall-of-Famer Ernie Banks holds two of the strangest baseball records in the books — when considered in the total overview. Banks, in a game on June 11, 1966, tied a major league mark by collecting three triples, then two years later he played the entire 1968 season without hitting one triple, tying another less regarded record.

Seven tied at 69 for lead in Open

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Let them talk all they want about Southern Hills' tough first three holes. Forget about them, and about No. 12, also, which Ben Hogan once called America's best par-4.

The hole where the U.S. Open will be won is the killer 18th, 449 yards of sheer terror that could be the most backbreaking finishing hole in the history of this ancient championship.

The tournament program advertises it as the "most difficult par" on the course, and that was never more true than it was Thursday. Seventeen golfers shot 1-under-par 69 or even-par 70 in the first round of the 77th Open, but 11 of them couldn't handle the par-4 18th.

WHEN ALL THE bogeys and double bogeys were counted, seven players — an Open record — shared the first round lead at 1-under-par 69 including Terry Diehl, one of only five men in the field of 153 who managed to make a birdie at 18.

"He must have hit a bad shot and got lucky," joked Hubert Green, who was able to laugh because he escaped from 18 with a par for 69 of his own. Tied with Diehl and Green were Rod Funseth, Larry Nelson, Grier Jones, Tom Purtzer and Florentino Molina. Funseth, Nelson and Jones all bogeyed 18.

Johnny Miller (71) said, "It's an unbelievable hole," and Tom Weiskopf (also 71 after playing the first three holes in five over) said, "It is unforgiving," but defending champion Jerry Pate perhaps best expressed in simple terms what happens there.

"IT GETS YOU," Pate said. "It got me."

What it got him was a double-bogey. He flew a bunker shot over the green, and wound up with a 72.

He had plenty of company.

Bob E. Smith and Steve Melnyk both went to the final tee needing par to take the lead. They both made double-bogeys, too, and joined a group of 10 at 70 that was headed by Arnold Palmer, who bogeyed 18. The other 70 shooters were Don Padgett, Sam Adams, Mike Morley, Joe Inman and Al Geiberger, all of whom finished with bogeys, George Burns who, remarkably, birdied the last three holes, and Morris Hatalasky, who finished with a par.

Southern Hills' 18th may not be as famous as the closing holes at say, Pebble Beach, Merion or Winged Foot, but it does have a history of its own. In 1958, when the Open last was played here, winner Tommy Bolt played only one round under par, a third-round 69. He finished it off with — you guessed it — a double-bogey at 18.

SINCE THEN merely to make it a little more difficult, a swath was cut through a cluster of trees behind the tee and a new tee was built, adding 15 yards to the hole. The drive must be about 250 yarss to reach a plateau on the left side of the fairway, and from there it's all uphill to an elevated green protected by bunkers. Thursday the hole played into a mild wind, and the pin was set at the back of the green.

Round of 73 for Marszalek

Chris Marszalek of Arlington Heights turned in a strong 73, playing the first Open round of his life. It gives the young professional an excellent chance at surviving the cut after today's round.

Marszalek said prior to traveling to Tulsa his goal in his first Open was to make the cut.

In order to play Thursday, he had to qualify for the right in regional and sectional rounds. He carded an even par 144 in a 36-hole tourney Monday, June 6, at Plum Tree National in Harvard, Ill., in this area's sectional.

Pickets threaten Open broadcasts

TULSA, Okla. — The American Broadcasting Co. has won a delay in the attempt by striking technicians to block ABC from televising portions of the U.S. Open, which began Thursday at Southern Hills Country Club. The National Association of Broadcast Employes and Technicians Wednesday filed in District Court a petition seeking to block ABC from covering the golf tournament. At issue is a 1973 Oklahoma law prohibiting state firms from bringing strikebreakers into the state.

NABET has been striking ABC for more than a month and has been picketing two entrances to Southern Hills for more than a week. ABC stalled the decision Thursday by filing a petition to move the proceedings to U.S. District Court. District Court Judge said the petition to move the case to the federal courts takes it out of his jurisdiction.

Chief U.S. District Judge Allen E. Barrow must now decide if the federal court has jurisdiction in the case. If not, he can remand it back to the state court. The U.S. Open will continue through Sunday.

U.S. women to Federation Cup final

EASTBOURNE, England — The United States powered its way to a 3-0 victory over France Thursday to reach the semifinals of the Federation Tennis Cup. Billie Jean King, Chris Evert and Rosie Casals continued their bid to retain the $110,000 trophy— the women's equivalent of the Davis Cup — in brilliant fashion, maintaining their tournament record of not dropping a set.

King crushed Frederique Thibault, 6-0, 6-0, Evert dropped a service in her 6-1, 6-3 win over veteran Francoise Durr and then partnered Casals to defeat Durr and Gail Lovera Sherriff, 6-3, 7-5. The doubles match was not without incident. At one stage the Americans trailed 3-5 before getting back into gear and winning four straight games to seal the set and tie.

The quarter-final began in bright sunshine and King gave a controlled display of power and touch. The big, strong Thibault could make little impression on her.

Bell back for Beer Night 'debut'

CLEVELAND — Buddy Bell, the AWOL third baseman of the Cleveland Indians, promises business as usual tonight and hopes fans of the troubled team will understand. Bell walked out of the locker room two hours before Wednesday night's game with the Texas Rangers and went home, explaining, "I just felt all at once I had to get away. I'll be back Friday night. Great night for a debut!"

The Indians have scheduled a Beer Night promotion for the opener of their weekend series against the Detroit Tigers. Bell's walkout snapped his string at 234 consecutive games and was merely the latest in a season of occurences in which the Indians have virtually made more news off the field than on.

Kuhn plays favorites: Finley

NEW YORK — Charlie Finley verbally blasted his arch enemy, Bowie Kuhn, again Thursday night, accusing the baseball commissioner of favoritism and misuse of his power in allowing the trade of pitcher Tom Seaver from the New York Mets to the World Champion Cincinnati Reds.

Finley, the owner of the Oakland A's, said Kuhn should have disallowed the Seaver trade especially after he had used his power to veto the sale of A's pitcher Vida Blue to the New York Yankees last June. At that time Kuhn said it was not in the best interests of baseball to allow Blue to go to the Yankees.

Finley questions whether it is in baseball's best interest to allow a three-time Cy Young Award winner to go to a two-time defending world champion.

Barr leads Giants past Cards, 5-1

Jim Barr pitched a seven-hitter and Darrell Evans drove in two runs with a double and an infield out Thursday, pacing San Francisco to a 5-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

In other National League action Thursday, New York defeated Houston 4-3. In the American League New York blanked Kansas City 7-0, Seattle beat Oakland 3-1, Detroit topped Toronto 4-1, Baltimore shutout Milwaukee 6-0, and Minnesota edged California 7-6.

The veteran right-hander Barr held St. Louis scoreless until the ninth when Hector Cruz and Ted Simmons stroked back-to-back doubles. Barr walked two and struck out six in gaining his eighth victory compared to five losses.

PINCH-RUNNER Steve Henderson and Felix Millan scored on shortstop Joe Gonzalez' three-base error with two out in the seventh inning, enabling the New York Mets to score a 4-3 victory over the Houston Astros.

Henderson ran for Ed Kranepool, who had reached first base on an error by Bob Watson, and Millan singled with two out. Pinch-hitter Mike Vail grounded to Gonzalez, who had a routine forceout at second base but threw the ball into right field allowing both runners to score.

Mickey Rivers collected three hits including his second homer of the year to support the three-hit pitching of rookie Ron Guidry in the New York Yankees 7-0 shutout of the Kansas City Royals.

Rivers doubled to open the game and scored one pitch later when Willie Randolph tripled to center field. Randolph scored on a balk by losing pitcher Dennis Leonard, 4-7.

BOB STINSON stroked a two-run single and Dan Meyer hit his seventh home run to back the five-hit pitching of Glenn Abbott in the Seattle Mariners 3-1 victory over the Oakland A's.

Abbott recorded his first complete game since 1975 in earning his third victory against six losses. All five hits off Abbott were singles. He struck out seven and walked two.

Ron LeFlore celebrated his birthday by hitting two home runs to provide Mark Fidyrch and the Detroit Tigers with a 4-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Steve Kemp gave Fidrych his final margin of victory in the eighth inning with a two-out two-run homer, his seventh of the season.

ANDRES MORA and Al Bumbry slammed two-run homers in the second inning to support the six-hit pitching of Rudy May and power the Baltimore Orioles to a 6-0 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

May raised his record to 9-5 in posting his 18th career shutout.

Rob Wilfong hit a two-out single in the ninth inning to drive in Butch Wynegar and give the Minnesota Twins a 7-6 victory over Nolan Ryan and the California Angels.

Ryan, who struck out 13 in losing his sixth game in 15 decisions, walked Wynegar and Mike Cubbage with one out in the ninth. After Larry Hisle flied out, Wilfong delivered his game-winning hit.

Holcomb wonders

Loren Tate

CHAMPAIGN, Ill—When Derek Holcomb leaves his wheelchair and tosses aside his crutches, the pressure points for his 6-11, 215-pound frame will be the balls of his two feet.

That's where the weight of the body is carried. As a result, the body has a built-in set of ball bearings, called sesamoid bones, which create a sliding motion and facilitate movement within these stress areas.

A skeletal view shows two small bones located side-by-side and enclosed within tendons just below the big toe on each foot. They contribute to the natural rolling motion as a person rocks from heel to toe in either walking or running.

FOR THE lanky Holcomb, they have only caused pain during the past eight months. So the new Illini, who has transferred from Indiana, had those bones removed Monday. The operation was called a success.

"As far as I was concerned, I didn't have any choice," said the Peorian from his Burnham Hospital bed.

"I had hoped the pain would go away, but I tried to play last week and I simply couldn't. The pain was too great. I don't want to go through again what I did last season. There seemed to be no other choice."

Holcomb, resting on his back with both feet bandaged, told of the miseries of last season at Indiana.

"I HAD SO much foam padding in my shoes that I must have been 7-feet-1. It was like running on air. Every time I made a sharp turn, my feet turned within the shoes. It felt squishy all the time."

This foot problem coupled with his inability to adjust to the Bobby Knight-style of coaching made it six months of agony. Derek decided early to leave, settling on Illinois even though the likelihood of transferring within the Big Ten seemed illogical at first. He can never receive an athletic scholarship at the UI.

"I may be able to do desk work later on this summer, and I'll be able to work during the basketball season since I won't be eligible. I'm confident I can work it out financially. And I've got plenty of time to get ready for basketball. A year is a long time but I'm going to keep my head together," said the former Richwoods star.

DR. JAMES Nauman, who performed the surgery in the company of Dr. Donald Ross, was reserved in evaluating Holcomb's future.

"Any kind of surgery on a basketball player's feet is serious," said Dr. Nauman.

"We did a lot of soul searching on this, and we realized that if we waited a year to see if therapy would work, it would be too late to operate. This type of thing is extremely rare. We realized right away that we would have to cut in from the side of the big toe in order to avoid creating scar tissue on the bottom of his feet. We were able to lay back the padding (which covers the ball of the foot) and remove the bones. They turned out to be larger than we anticipated."

Derek gazed at the sesamoid bones in plastic bags alongside his bed.

"THEY'RE MUCH larger than I expected. I thought they were more the size of BBs but they're several times that large. No wonder it felt like I was running on rocks."

Drs. Nauman and Ross discussed the surgery with numerous foot specialists across the country, with emphasis on the idea of cutting in from the side.

"We received different responses," said Dr. Nauman. "One doctor in Indianapolis said Derek is assured of full recovery. We aren't going that far. It is a delicate surgery and we'll have to wait and see how he responds. He'll be pretty much off his feet for six weeks and he'll have to avoid running and jumping for three or four months."

Derek will move around at first via crutches and the heels of his feet. Dr. Nauman has not discounted the idea of casting both feet. Rest is the therapy prescribed at this stage.

"I'M SURE THE year away from competition will make me all the more eager to return," said Derek. "That's a lot of time to get ready so I'm confident it will work out. There are some great players moving into the league and I'm anxious to be a part of it again. I played with Mark Smith (UI recruit from Richwoods) recently and he's getting stronger all the time. Illinois has some outstanding players."

The key individual in 1979-80-81 figures to be Holcomb himself. Monday's surgery holds the secret to his future and could ultimately determine whether the Illini can fight their way back into the first division of the nation's toughest conference.

Seaver's eyes are 'Red' already

NEW YORK (UPI) — A love affair is over and all that remains are bitter words and sad tears.

Tom Seaver was called many things in his 12 years in the New York Mets' organization. He was the Franchise, Tom Terrific, the best pitcher in baseball for nearly a decade. He won three Cy Young awards, helped the Mets win one World Series and two National League pennants. He was selected for nine All-Star teams.

Tom Seaver turned the Mets from clowns to champions and he was loved by the New York fans perhaps more than any player since Mickey Mantle wore pinstripes for the Yankees.

NOW IT is over, Seaver, blaming the inflexible attitude of the Mets' Chairman M. Donald Grant and a personal attack by Grant's friend, New York Daily News columnist Dick Young, was traded to the Cincinnati Reds for four players (Pat Zachry, Doug Flynn, Steve Henderson and Dan Norman) late Wednesday night in the biggest shakeup of any baseball team in years.

Home run slugger Dave Kingman, the Mets' second biggest drawing card, was traded to San Diego for two players (Bobby Valentine and Paul Siebert). A second string Met (Mike Phillips) was also traded.

The Mets' switchboard was swamped with angry, cursing fans all day Thursday. Protesters carried placards and shouted outside Shea Stadium.

Mayor Abraham D. Beame said Seaver is "an institution in this city and he will be sorely missed by all loyal Met fans."

INSIDE SHEA Thursday morning, Tom Seaver went through the ritual of cleaning out his locker. Surrounded by dozens of newsmen, Seaver's blue eyes welled with tears as he tried to express his feelings for his fans.

"... the question of the fans in New York," Seaver started to say, "... ahhh, if I could retain enough composure to talk 60 seconds, I'd have it made. As far as the fans go, I've given them a lot of thrills and they've been equally returned and that ovation I got the other night ..."

Seaver choked, unable to continue. He left the crowded room and washed his face. He returned and still could not read the few words he had scribbled on a small piece of paper. A newsman finished reading it for him.

"... the ovation they gave me the other night after passing Sandy Koufax, that will be one of the most memorable and warmest memories of my life."

SEAVER PASSED Koufax that night in career strikeouts and, ironically, his victim in the 8-0 win was Cincinnati. The Reds are the only club over which Seaver does not hold more victories than losses.

On Saturday, Seaver will pitch his first game in a Cincinnati uniform against Montreal.

Seaver recounted his discussions with the Mets before the trade. He said he had softened his position and was no longer requesting the Mets renegotiate his contract. He said he would play out his two-year contract and asked the Mets to negotiate a separate contract for 1979-80-81 that would give him the security he sought. The Mets, he said, were considering his proposal and the trade was nearly off.

"I don't know how far that got," Seaver said, "because of something that happened the next day. Dick Young's column, when he dragged my wife into this and my family, I called the Mets back and pulled my offer back and said 'that's it.' I said this alliance, or whatever it is, and all the abuse I've taken, the attacks that I've had from Young, and his alliance with the Chairman of the Board, there was just no way it could be repaired, regardless of what was about to happen."

Girls sports—time for learning

Opening The Herald and seeing a picture of Mrs. Mary Lou Hundt being presented the Paddock Trophy, representing excellence in Arlington High School's girls' athletic program, certainly made me feel a sense of joy. Mrs. Hundt is a woman who certainly deserves everything she gets.

I spent my four years (1970 - 74) at Arlington High School as a cheerleader — an activity which I thoroughly enjoyed and from which I learned a great deal. But, to be honest, there are times when I compare myself to my classmates who put their energies towards, say, competing on the girls' tennis team during those four years. While I now have many, many fond memories of my cheerleading years, my classmates now have the ability to play tennis well.

So, thank you to the Arlington girls' athletic department, but most importantly to Mrs. Hundt for her years of hard work and determination in giving young women a most precious gift — a choice.

REQUESTS TOUGHER GUIDELINES

My complaint is against the Hoffman Estates Park District Soccer Club.

There has been no guidelines in soccer as there are in Pee Wee and Widget football. Dennis (15 years old, 5-10½, 160 pounds and a freshman in high school) was placed on the same team as my son Doug (12 years, 4-11, 75 pounds and a seventh grader). Dennis signed up to play on a bigger boys' team, but he was put down.

As a result, he received nothing but harassment from spectators, opposing teams and coaches, and referees were forwarned to keep an eye on him. Playing center forward and in playing the ball, he could easily knock down and injure someone small, as most of the players in this division are.

This went on from the beginning of the season and got progressively worse. In fact, whereas other boys have been suspended from the next game because of "mouthyness," he was suspended for the rest of the season.

I have requested from the park district a refund of my $12 on the grounds of "mental cruelty" and unfair suspension, from all involved.

ENJOYED '500' COVERAGE

As a former Indianapolis resident and great fan of the "500," I just wanted you to know how much I enjoyed your feature articles on this year's race. I am constantly amazed by the score or your coverage. Keep up the good work and I'll keep reading.

Starfish bring home nine golds

Northwest YMCA's athletes distinguished themselves in the Illinois Special Olympics State Swimming Meet at Southern Illinois University (Carbondale).

Northwest's swimmers, called the Starfish, won nine gold, 10 silver, and two bronze medals.

One of those gold medals was the girls 16 and under relay team's first place finish. This group consisted of Sandy Saunders, Sandy Williams, Patricia Muzzy, and Elaine Shaw.

Other Northwest swimmers were Scott Peters, Gail Fahrlion, Susan Klingberg, Robert Devinger, Ricky Koch, Terry Vanderwall, Michael Lattof, Michael Grant, and Kathryn Till. All these athletes qualified by winning gold medals at the Northern Illinois Conference meet in April.

Team coaches were Williams Flowers, Pat Hughes, Vince O'Leary, Paul Dombrowski, Jean Marie Jongleaux, Lisa Searfoss.

Team chaperones included Richard Koch, Russel Vanderwall, Mr. M. H. Shaw, and Mrs. Raymond Muzzi. Carol Crouch, Northwest's Special Olympics director, also attended the meet.

Tennis tournaments slated

National Tennis Week, acknowledged by the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, will be conducted at more than 1,200 sites around the country June 18-26. Forty-nine governors and 284 mayors or local officials have issued proclamations asking their constituents to participate in National Tennis Week.

The President's Council urges America to "take advantage of the opportunity offered to participate in the free clinics, local tournaments and the special Lipton Iced Tea Mixed Doubles Championship which will be conducted at tennis clubs and facilities throughout the country."

Players participating in National Tennis Week clinics or tournaments will begin earning the right to wear the Presidential Sports Awards in tennis.

An innovative feature of this year's program is the Mixed Doubles Championship, an amateur tournament that will be held at hundreds of local facilities. Winners will advance to state, regional and national levels. More than 400 local tournaments have been scheduled by clubs and recreation departments around the country.

Maine West tabs Mortier for head football position

Da Mortier is the new head varsity football coach at Maine West. Mortier replaces Jim Morel, who resigned in spring.

Mortier a 27-year-old Illinois State University graduate, has been a Maine West football coaching staff member two years. In 1975, Mortier's freshman football team outscored its opponents by a 4-1 margin. Last year, Mortier was an assistant varsity football coach. He also teaches driver education.

Before coming to Maine West, he coached at Streator (Ill.) High School. From 1972-1974, he was head sophomore football coach and assistant varsity football coach.

All the Streator teams he was associated with produced winning seasons. His 1974 conference team won the conference championship.

Mortier's athletic career began at Rock Island Alleman High School. In football his senior year, the center-linebacker earned All-Conference, All-Western Illinois, and Special Mention All-State honors. Mortier also participated in basketball for three years and baseball for two years at Alleman.

Dan Mortier

Maine West principal James Coburn and school athletic director Dick Carlini lauded Mortier's appointment.

"Maine West is pleased and proud to have as its newly appointed head varsity football coach an individual with so noteworthy a background in the sport," said Coburn.

"We think he's a fine young man with a wholesome attitude toward kids," said Carlini. Mortier was chosen from 7-1 0 other District 207 football coaches.

Other than producing a winning team, Mortier's biggest problem is rekindling West football interest.

The Warriors were down to only 28 players by last season's final game. That team was 2-7 over-all and 2-5 in the Central Suburban League South Division.

"The big thing right now is participation," Mortier said. "We must convince them they'll enjoy the program. We have to get the kid who's not sure he's interested in football or not."

Brett leaves Sox with mixed feelings

Ken Brett said Thursday that he has mixed emotions about being traded by the White Sox to the California Angels — mostly happy ones.

"I don't like being traded at 3 a.m.," the left-handed pitcher said after the late-night negotiating which resulted in the transfer. "But my entire family is in the Los Angeles area and I have a ton of friends out there."

The Angels just beat the trading deadline in obtaining Brett, who is 6-4 this season with a 5.01 earned run average. But the 28-year-old had not signed a contract with the White Sox, and negotiations had produced little reason to think he would.

"I GUESS I forced their hand without trying to," Brett said.

California gave up three players and an undisclosed amount of cash for Brett. The Sox picked up pitchers Don Kirkwood and John Verhoeven and infielder John Flannery.

Kirkwood posted a 1-0 record with a 5.09 ERA in 13 games for the Angels. Verhoeven and Flannery played for the Angels' Salt Lake City farm club in the Pacific Coast League.

Brett, a Brooklyn native, compiled a 10-12 record with Chicago in 1976 with a 3.31 ERA. His 10-victory record was the best for the Sox. In nine of his 26 starts last year, his teammates produced either one or no runs.

HE HAD been a good batter for a pitcher, but because of the designated-hitter rule in the American League he has not been able to display his skill.

He compiled a .310 batting average in 1974, his best year at the plate with the Pittsburgh Pirates. He also has 10 major league home runs, four of them in consecutive starts with the Philadelphia Phillies in 1973.

At 19, Brett was the youngest man to pitch in a World Series, making two appearances with the Boston Red Sox in 1967. He came within one out of pitching a no-hitter in 1976 against his new team, the Angels.

Legion entries in Bloomington

Both the Arlington Heights and Logan Square American Legion baseball teams will participate in the Bloomington Invitational Tournament today.

Arlington will play Decatur, Ia., at 1:30 p.m. in the double-elimination tourney, which continues through Sunday. If Arlington wins, they will play again at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

Logan Square opens against Collinsville at 7:30 p.m. in the final game of Friday's action. The winner will play again at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Other teams in the Invitational are Washington, Eureka, Lincoln, Bloomington, Danville and Lafayette, Ind.

John Wentworth won the men's championship and Carol Bratton captured the women's title in the Arlington Tennis Club's Open Singles Tournament at Hersey High School, June 11 and 12. The tournament attracted 72 entries of 40 men and 32 women.

Wentworth beat John Rice 6-2, 6-3, for his title and Bratton topped Bonnie Scully, 6-1, 6-1.

The consolation champs were Perry Eli who beat Steve Arneson, 7-5, 6-4, in the men's division, and Amy McGrann, who beat Marianna Boyd, 6-1, 6-4, in the women's division.

The club opened its summer tournament season June 4 and 5 with an open doubles tournament at Prospect High School. George Nasser and Bill Lange defeated defending champions Gary Brodnan and Larry Smith for the men's title with scores of 6-1, 3-6, 6-2.

Flurry of 11th hour trades sends 28 players packing

Twenty-eight major league players felt the tremors of being uprooted as clubs consummated deals that beat the deadline.

Tom Seaver, a three-time Cy Young award winner, spent a tear-filled hour cleaning up his locker in the New York Mets' clubhouse prior to joining his new Cincinnati team.

Both the Reds and Mets continued unloading stars. New York peddled troublesome Slugger Dave Kingman, who hit 37 homes for the Mets last season but was batting only .209 with nine circuit smashes this year, to San Diego for infielder Bobby Valentine and southpaw Paul Siebert, and then dealt shortstop Mike Phillips to St. Louis for outfielder Joel Youngblood.

UNLIKE SEAVER, Kingman was in a surly mood when he went to Shea Thursday to pack his belongings. He threatened a group of photographers that he would break their cameras if he heard a click.

Cincinnati traded pitcher Gary Nolan to California, sent relief ace Rawly Eastwick to California in a deal for infielder Craig Henrickson and dispatched reliever Mike Caldwell to Milwaukee. Most of the Reds' returns were in minor league talent.

St. Louis Cardinals' General Manager Bing Devine acknowledged he would be criticized for trading .300 hitting outfielder Bake McBride, but felt the acquisition of left-hander Tommy Underwood from Philadelphia was justified. The Cards may use Underwood as a starter since they now have a relief corps of Eastwick, Al Hrabosky, Butch Metzger and Clay Carroll.

Philadelphia continued active in the trade mart with a battery change involving Montreal. The Phils sent righthander Wayne Twitchell and catcher Tim Blackwell to the Expos for southpaw Dan Warthen and receiver Barry Foote.

PITCHER DOCK Ellis continued his migration in the majors, trading an American League uniform for the second time since last season as he travelled from the New York Yankees to the Oakland A's to the Texas Rangers. Texas also traded pitcher Steve Hargan to Atlanta.

Catcher-first baseman Cliff Johnson and outfielder Willie Crawford, traded to American League clubs by Houston, said they were pleased at the opportunity to serve as designated hitters with their new teams. Johnson went to the New York Yankees and Crawford to Oakland.

In another deal, Pittsburgh traded utility outfielder Ed Kirkpatrick to Texas for reserve infielder Jim Fregosi.

Transactions

Pittsburgh — Traded utility outfielder Ed Kirpatrick to Texas for reserve infielder Jim Fregost.

California — Traded pitchers Don Kirkwood and John Verhoeven, infielder John Flannery and an Undisclosed amount of cash to the Chicago White Sox for left-handed pitcher Ken Brett.

Oakland — Purchased outfielder Willie Crawford from the Houston Astros for an undisclosed amount of cash and sold outfielder Dennis Walling to the Astros' Charleston farm club in International League.

Cincinnati — Traded relief pitcher Rawley Eastwick to the St. Louis Cardinals for minor league pitcher Doug Capilla; traded relief pitcher Mike Caldwell to the Milwaukee Brewers for minor league pitcher Rich O'Keeffe and minor league infielder Gary Pyka; purchased minor league utility infielder Rick Auerbach; traded right handed pitcher Gary Nolan to the California Angels for infielder Craig Hendrickson and a player or players to be named later.

New York Mets — Traded pitcher Tom Seaver to the Cincinnati Reds for pitcher Pat Zachry, infielder Doug Flynn and minor league outfielders Steve Henderson and Dan Norman; traded outfielder Dave Kingman to San Diego for infielder Bobby Valentine and left-handed pitcher Paul Siebert; traded shortstop Mike Phillips to St. Louis for outfielder Joel Youngblood; sent third baseman Roy Staiger to Tidewater in the International League; Removed Manager Joe Torre as an active player from Roster.

New York Yankees — Acquired catcher-first baseman Cliff Johnson from the Houston Astros for minor leeague left-handed pitcher Randy Niemann and a player to be named later.

Philadelphia Phillies — Traded left-handed pitcher Tommy Underwood and minor leaguers Rick Bosetti and Dane Iorg to St. Louis for outfielder Bake McBride and minor league pitcher Steve Waterbury; traded rigt-handed pitcher Wayne Twitchell and catcher Tim Blackwell to the Montreal Expos for catcher Barry Foote and left-handed pitcher Dan Warthen.

Texas Rangers — purchased pitcher Dock Ellis from the Oakland A's and traded pitcher Steve Hargan to the Atlanta Braves.

Sand hole could be problem

Doyle K. Getter

Your auto and you

Auto Column: I have a 1968 LeSabre and keep it in very good condition. The only trouble is, I have to add Prestone about once a week. It seems to evaporate. There are no leaks in the radiator or hoses. Could you please tell me what is wrong?

FRANK SECOLD, Peoria, Ill.

Mr. Secold: The chances are that you have a very tiny sand hole in the engine. When the engine is cold, take off the radiator cap and add a can of heavy duty pelletized-type cooling system sealer.

Auto Column: I have a starter problem with my 1972 Pontiac Catalina with the 400 cubic inch V-8 engine. At times I have to turn the starter switch four or five times to start the engine. The original starter lasted for 32,000 miles. I now have a rebuilt starter.

VERNE DuBOIS, Ocala, Fla.

Mr. DuBois: If you mean that nothing happens when you turn the switch, the engine doesn't turn over at all, you probably have a bad switch or a poor connection somewhere in the starter circuit. If the engine seems to want to turn over but can hardly make it, just turns over slowly, you may have an undersize rebuilt starter. Very few rebuilts have enough power, for a 400 cubic inch or larger engine consistently.

Auto Column: I have a 1973 Electra Buick. When I start the car, there is a howling noise, more in the winter than in the summer. When the car warms up, the noise stops. Is there anything I can do about it?

MRS. M.J., Waukesha, Wis.

Mrs. M.J.: If the noise disappears as the engine warms up, I don't think you need be concerned about it, especially in cold weather. It might be a pressure regulator valve, power steering pump or oil pump buzzing or a loose air cleaner. When an engine warms up and metals expand to their proper tolerances and the noise disappears, usually nothing is wrong. It's when the noise does not disappear that you should worry.

Auto Column: I have a 1969 AMC Rebel. When I travel a short distance and in that space I have occasion to shut off the motor four or five times and then restart after 10 or 15 minutes at each stop, about the third or fourth time I try to restart the motor, the motor barely turns over. It acts as if the battery is almost dead. If the motor is off for a couple of hours, it comes right back to full power. The starter is a rebuilt starter.

FRED J. STEWART, West Seneca, N.Y.

Mr. Stewart: This occurs only when the starter motor begins to get hot so I suspect the problem might be in the bushings or armature of the starter motor. After all, a rebuilt starter is only as good as the rebuilding job. What did they rebuild in the starter? From your complaint, I doubt if it was the bushings or armature.

Do-it-yourselfer has street van

by DOYLE K. GETTER

Although professional customizing of recreational vans has grown into a big business in the past few years, by far most of the passenger vans now in use have been customized, in whole or part, by their owners to reflect personal tastes.

Aiming at that market, Dodge this spring introduced a new van, called the "Street Van," that was designed specifically for the do-it-yourselfer who wants to do at least part of the work.

A prospective vanner can order the Street Van in its basic "stripped" shape for $4,645. As with any car, he can order factory installed options. On the test car these included a larger engine, automatic transmission, air conditioning, power steering, speed control, AM-FM radio and swiveling front seats.

IF HIS POCKETBOOK holds out, he can also order a basic custom interior to which he can add his personal refinements.

That was the stage of factory conversion that had been completed on the Street Van that I drove recently. The vehicle listed for $8,258. The front bucket seats could swivel toward the rear and there were two padded and carpeted benches at the rear, facing each other, that could each seat three.

The walls were softly padded and the floor and ceiling were carpeted. A refrigerator, tucked away under a counter top, was the only extra equipment installed.

While the interior was far from austere and could be used easily as it was, a kit of further customizing suggestions, instructions, plans and templates was included with the Street Van to guide the do-it-yourselfer.

THE REAR WINDOW in the large single door at the rear had been fitted with privacy glass. I could see out, which aided driving in traffic, but no one could see in.

The van was built on a 127 inch wheelbase, making it comparable to a full size station wagon before they began shrinking in size. A smaller Street Van on a 109 inch wheelbase is also built by Dodge.

The test van was powered by Dodge's two-barrel 360 cubic inch V-8 engine, the largest optional engine offered. It was more than adequate.

I AVERAGED 11.5 miles per gallon in city and freeway driving and 18.7 miles per gallon on the highway at 55 miles an hour. With the optional 36 gallon fuel tank, the van had a highway range of more than 600 miles.

It would accelerate from zero to 50 miles an hour in 8.1 seconds and from 30 to 50 in 4.6 seconds.

It was not a difficult task to drive in either city or highway traffic but I missed the extra vision that side windows offer a driver.

U.S. Steel to pay pollution penalty

The United States Steel Corp. Thursday agreed to pay $4 million in return for a three-year extension of deadlines for curbing discharges of cyanide, phenol and ammonia from its Gary, Ind., works into Lake Michigan. Officials of the United States Environmental Protection Agency said the settlement involves the largest civil penalty ever assessed in a water pollution case. The EPA, U.S. Steel and the State of Indiana entered the consent agreement in U.S. District Court in Hammond, Ind. The agreement will be held for public comment for 30 days before it is formally entered by the court.

Coffee price drops to new low

A Major New York City supermarket chain cut the retail price of coffee for the first time in more than two years Thursday as the price of coffee on world markets took a nosedive. Colombia, the second largest coffee producing nation after Brazil, slashed its minimum export price for coffee by 34 cents to $2.69 a pound. In New York City, Shopwell, Inc., marked down canned coffee by 20 cents to $3.99 a pound, effective June 19, to "protest ridiculous coffee prices." Martin Rosengarten, president and chief executive of Shopwell, which operates 81 supermarkets, said: "This is the first price reduction on coffee in more than two years." But he also urged consumers "to restrict their coffee consumption as prices are still ridiculously high."

Inventories up .9% in April

Business inventories rose .9 per cent in April when sales at all levels of the merchandising chain fell off, the Commerce Dept. said Thursday. Commerce analysts said the weaker sales experience would have to continue before raising anxieties that there was a connection with inventory growth. Retail sales improved in May. Rising inventories during a period of improving sales is a sign of a strong economy and improved job opportunities. If inventories rise because of poor sales, then production will lag and unemployment will increase. Most of the shift in inventories occurred at the manufacturing level, up $1.6 billion, where sales decreased 1.4 per cent in April. Wholesale inventories rose $737 million. Sales increased 1.2 per cent, weaker than the 1.5 per cent gain in March. Retail inventories rose $636 million while sales remained virtually unchanged.

Gulf admits secret oil cartel

Gulf Oil acknowledged Thursday its Canadian subsidiary joined in a secret international cartel in 1972 to boost uranium prices, but said it broke no antitrust law and did not cause the 700 per cent jump in U.S. prices that followed. Jerry McAfee, Gulf president and board chairman, defended company policy in testimony to a House Commerce subcommittee after the panel released more than 24 subpoenaed documents confirming the cartel's formation. Gulf said it was "compelled" to belong to the cartel, but subcommittee Chairman John Moss, D-Calif., was skeptical.

TWA case ruled no discrimination

The Supreme Court ruled 7 to 2 Thursday that employers need not discriminate against some of their workers merely to accomodate the religious needs of others. Justice Byron White, speaking for the majority in a Trans World Airlines case, said the seniority system in a union's contract with the company, in itself, represents "a significant accommodation to the needs, both religious and secular, of all of TWA's employes."

DeSoto 20c share dividend

DeSoto, Inc., Des Plaines, in its board of directors meeting, declared a regular quarterly dividend of 20 cents per share of the company's common stock, payable July 22 to holders of record at the close of business July 1. The board increased the dividend by five cents per share in view of the improvement in the company's operating performance.

ATT seeks Telpak continuance

The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. has sought a temporary court ruling allowing it to continue its Telpak service under current regulations that do not allow Telpak users to resell or share the service. ATT asked the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second District in New York Wednesday for the ruling at least until the court has been able to review a Federal Communications Commission order on resale and sharing. Telpak is a leased private line service permitting customers with large-scale communications needs to purchase bundles of 60 or 240 private lines at a discount rate. The biggest users of the service are the Federal government and the nation's airlines.

Mutual funds have many benefits for the unsophisticated investor

by ROBERT EDWARDS

Mutual funds shucked their cloak of market supremacy during the stock declines of the early '70s. Many buyers continue to report disappointment with fund performances. Yet, mutual funds offer several advantages to unsophisticated investors — so-called professional management, diversification, opportunity for dollar averaging through purchase of small numbers of additional shares at regular intervals, and liquidity. One important difference among funds, however, is whether they charge a sales commission or not.

Money-market funds and the still new tax-free municipal bond funds are almost exclusively no-loads; that is, there is no sales commission when buying shares. With more than 50 of these funds doing business without a load charge, more investors are asking:

"Why should I buy a fund and pay 8½ percent of my funds as a front-end load? Are load funds that much better than no-load funds? What has been the performance of load vs. no-load funds?" The "Mutual Funds Almanac" by Yale Hirsch provides some factual answers that are worth considering.

NO-LOAD FUNDS start with one significant advantage — more of your money to invest. When a load fund deducts 8½ percent of your funds, only $9,150 remains to be invested out of $10,000. The no-load fund managers start with $10,000 to invest. This means load fund managers must run faster than the no-load fund managers to catch up. How fast?

Suppose both funds grow at the rate of 10 per cent a year. The no-load fund will be worth $11,000 and the load fund will be worth $10,065 after one year. The no-load fund is $935 ahead — more than the original $850 difference. The load fund after a year's growth is just barely above where the no-load fund started. After 20 years of growth at an annual 10 percent rate, the no-load fund will be close to $6,000 ahead.

To reach the $1,100 level, the load fund running from back of the starting pole would have to gain $1,850 over a base of $9,150 or 20+ percent. Expecting a fund's managers to pick up the difference in only one year is unreasonable. To catch up over five years, load-fund managers must increase yield by about 12 percent each year to match no-load managers at 10 percent.

In one study, no-load funds outperformed load funds in each of five different five-year periods by 20.4 to 41.4 percent. Average annual appreciation of no-load funds was 11.5 percent; for load funds, appreciation was 10.0 percent.

AMONG CONVENTIONAL mutual funds (excluding money-market and tax-free funds), at least 155 are no-loads. An increasing number of funds that started with a sales charge are dropping it to compete for investors' dollars. According to Investment Company Institute, no-load funds have grown from $28.2 million in sales and 6.1 percent of funds invested in 1960 to $617.1 million in sales and 18.7 percent of the funds invested in 1975.

Interested investors must assume an active role in picking a no-load fund. Since brokers do not earn a commission, you must learn about and manage investing in no-loads on your own. To do this:

- Analyze your own objectives — always a critical first step in any investment program.
- Select those no-load funds whose stated objectives match yours.
- Write for a prospectus from three to five mutual funds and study their performance and organization.
- Pick one, possibly two, funds for investing.
- Complete the application and send off the money to the custodian bank named — and you're in business!

For more information on specific fund performance plus funds listed by stated objectives, refer to the latest "Mutual Funds Almanac" (The Hirsch Organization, Inc., 6 Deer Trail, Old Tappan, New Jersey 07675).

Legal insurance latest gimmick

Jane Bryant Quinn

Staying ahead

NEW YORK — In California, you can pay $25 a year for the right to telephone a lawyer anytime you want and get fast advice.

In Washington, D.C., laborers in the construction industry get free advice and consultation on personal legal problems as well as free courtroom representation. Everything's paid out of union dues.

In western Pennsylvania, Blue Cross is preparing to offer individual legal-insurance contracts, at prices ranging from $60 to $140 per family. The lower-cost contract would cover up to 17 hours of legal consultation, which might run around $450 if paid for privately.

IN YOUR OWN CITY, plans like this may soon be available if they aren't already. According to the American Bar Assn., some 150 full-scale prepaid legal insurance plans are now operating in the United States, covering about 2 million people. And perhaps as many as 10,000 unions, credit unions, employers and other groups offer some form of group legal benefits.

The 1976 tax reform law made it advantageous for companies to offer these plans as a fringe benefit, which doubtlessly will expand their number tremendously. Millions of people would buy individual coverage if it were offered at a reasonable price.

Low-cost legal advice is, in fact, the chief attraction of prepaid insurance plans. Typically, an employer, credit union or other group will contract with a specific panel of lawyers, offering them a large volume of legal business if they'll promise to charge each group member a low fee. The cost may be 20 to 40 per cent below standard fees.

Other plans(including those sponsored by bar associations; allow you to choose any lawyer you want. The coverage pays for a certain number of hours of legal work, so if the problem can be cleared up quickly the cost is low. However, once the work exceeds the time covered by the insurance contract, the lawyer can charge his usual fee.

IF YOU KNOW your case is complicated, you should take the precaution of negotiating a reasonable fee in advance. But your insurance at least guarantees that the case will cost less than it would have without the coverage.

Some plans even cover "major legal" expenses just the way health plans cover "major medical." You have to pay a deductible (perhaps $1,000) and the plan picks up the rest of the cost.

Legal insurance plans provide another benefit, worth even more than you'll save on legal fees. Having the coverage encourages you to use a lawyer for legal muddles, when otherwise you might try to do without.

Middle and lower income people generally avoid lawyers if at all possible. Mainly, they don't want to pay the fee. And a lot of people have personal grievances against the legal profession, and take pride in handling all their problems themselves.

THAT'S FINE, if it works. But it often doesn't. Stuart Brown of the National Legal Service Plan in Westwood, Calif., told my associate Anne Colamosca that a good part of his business comes from untangling do-it-yourself legal projects — especially do-it-yourself divorces. Many an heir has lost money because of a do-it-yourself will; or a seller, because of a do-it-yourself contract.

Legal insurance programs encourage "preventive law" — people asking what to do about their problems before they get bad enough to need expensive help. The legal services most commonly needed involve landlord-tenant disputes; traffic cases; accidents; making or probating a will; consumer debt; family problems, like divorces and child support; criminal charges; and, a new area, upgrading military discharges and applying for G.I. benefits.

Plans like that of the Laborers Union District Council in Washington, D.C. don't stop at small disputes, as some plans do, but stay with the worker right into the courtroom if that's necessary.

Stocks rally to favorable economics, Dow up 2.88

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks, aided by some favorable economic news, rallied Thursday to post a modest gain in active trading that featured natural gas and movie issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average, down about 4 points at the outset, rallied to gain 2.88 points to 920.45. The closely watched average lost 5 points Wednesday, after soaring 10.17 points Tuesday.

The rally was helped by government reports of a 2 per cent rise in May housing starts, a 3 per cent hike in building permits and a 1.1 per cent industrial production increase. Housing starts are 34 per cent ahead of last year and production is 6.3 per cent ahead.

ALSO IN THE news background, the U.S. Commerce Dept. reported business inventories rose 1 per cent in April from March. But the report said sales declined 0.4 per cent.

After the New York market closed, the Federal Reserve Board reported the nation's money supply rose $1 billion in the latest reporting week and loan demand at New York banks climbed $340 million.

The news left observers here wondering if trendsetting Citibank of New York will lower its prime lending rate a quarter point from the prevailing 6¾ per cent level Friday morning. No major New York banks have followed Morgan Guaranty Trust's rate cut earlier this week.

The New York stock exchange common stock index gained 0.14 to 54.56 and the average price of a common share increased by 8 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, containing some over-the-counter issues, rose 0.24 to 99.85.

ADVANCES TOPPED declines, 800 to 576, among the 1,884 issues crossing the composite tape.

Big Board volume totaled 24,310,000 shares, up from the 22,640,000 traded Wednesday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues traded on all exchanges and over the counter totaled 28,113,350 shares, compared with 26,379,050 Wednesday.

THE REMAINS of Bishop John Nepomucene Neumann, who is to be canonized in Rome Sunday, repose below the altar in a shrine at St. Peter's church in Philadelphia. His skeletal remains were exhumed from a tomb in St. Peter's in 1962 so some bone could be sent to Rome for use as relics. The image of his face is of plastic. Bishop Neumann was fourth Bishop of Philadelphia.

Neumann first U.S. male saint

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — More than 100,000 pilgrims will throng St. Peter's Square Sunday to hear Pope Paul VI declare the "Little Bishop" of Philadelphia as America's first male saint.

The canonization climaxes a 91-year sainthood drive by the followers of Bishop John Neumann — the third American to be proclaimed a saint of the Roman Catholic Church.

Newmann died from exhaustion in 1860 on the streets of Philadelphia at the age of 48. Reports of miraculous cures soon appeared.

A SHY, SELF-EFFACING man who stood only 5-feet-2, Neumann was considered such an unlikely candidate for sainthood that he almost missed joining the rolls of new saints marching into the Church this year.

In fact, Neumann's candidacy was held up for 10 years because the Vatican Congregation of Rites considered his life "too ordinary" — a series of everyday actions accomplished flawlessly but unexceptionally.

But in 1921, Pope Benedict XV overruled the Congregation, saying: "Works, even the most simple, performed with constant perfection in the mist of inevitable difficulties, spell herosim in any servant of God."

Thus it was that John Neumann came to join Mother Frances Xavier Cabrini and Mother Elizabeth Ann Bayley Seton as the only three saints from the United States.

NEUMANN'S EFFORTS as a horseback circuit priest and English teacher in upstate New York have been credited with spreading the parochial school system throughout the United States.

Born March 28, 1811, in the village of Prachatitz in what is now Czechoslovakia, Neumann originally wanted to become a doctor of medicine.

His Roman Catholic mother "was not too happy with this," Neumann said in an autobiographical sketch, and persuaded him to enter a theological seminary instead.

At the seminary, Neumann decided to become a missionary in the United States and in 1836 set out for the New World without having been ordained and without an assignment.

THE DIOCESE of New York, filled with thousands of German immigrants and no priests who spoke their language, was thrilled to have him.

Within a month he was ordained in the old St. Patrick's Cathedral on Mott Street and dispatlhed to a 900-square mile parish along the Erie Canal in upstate New York.

Neumann spent four years teaching English and religion in the log cabin schools he organized while administering on horseback to a parish that extended from Niagara Falls to Buffalo to Batavia.

In 1840, he contracted gastric fever, collapsed and finally quit his post as a lone missionary-pastor to join the Redemptorist Order.

Neumann went from Pittsburgh to Baltimore for the Redemptorists, constantly working himself beyond his endurance, much to the concern of his superiors.

In 1851, Neumann's name was suggested to the Vatican for the vacant post of Bishop of Philadelphia — a candidacy favored by Rome because of the large number of German immigrants in the City of Brotherly Love.

NEUMANN CONSIDERED himself an unsophisticated immigrant who lacked the qualities needed for a bishop and begged with tears in his eyes for his nomination to be withdrawn.

The Vatican rejected his appeals and he went to Philadelphia, continuing his work with Catholic schools, building or beginning construction of 89 churches and instituting the Forty Hours devotion, a special devotion to the Eucharist.

On Jan. 5, 1860, a few weeks bfore his 49th birthday, Bishop Neumann died of exhaustion on the icy streets of Philadelphia.

A "motley crew" of "ragged outcasts and very humble citizens with an infusion of colored little ones" mobbed the church for Neumann's funeral, according to the Philadelphia Bulletin newspaper.

Within weeks of his death, stories of cures attributed to his intercession spread throughout the diocese.

Moved by the stories, a successor, Archbisohop Patrick Ryan, began collecting evidence on his life in 1886.

Eleven years later Archbishop Ryan sent a preliminary report to the Vatican and Neumann was named a "Servant of God" — the start of the lengthy road to sainthood that ends Sunday when Pope Paul VI declares him a saint.

White House withdraws nomination

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rather than face a bruising battle with congressional Democrats, the White House has quietly withdrawn the nomination of a career foreign service officer with Nixon administration ties to a top State Dept. post.

White House and State Dept. officials confirmed that the Carter administration has withdrawn the nomination of Frank Carlucci, U.S. ambassador to Portugal, to be deputy undersecretary of state for management.

The Democratic opposition, according to the White House, stemmed from the fact Carlucci held several important political appointments in the Nixon administration.

A FOREIGN SERVICE career officer, Carlucci had been a college roommate at Princeton of Donald Rumsfeld. That relationship with a man who held several top spots in the Nixon administration, led to Carlucci's selection as head of the Office for Economic Opportunity and undersecretary of health, education and welfare.

White House officials said the administration was informed by prominent Democrats in Congress that Carlucci's nomination would be fought, on the floor of the Senate, if necessary. The opposition stemmed from the belief Carlucci had been a principal instrument in the dismantling of Lyndon Johnson's War on Poverty.

An administration source said, "We decided it was not a good idea politically to take on a battle over a man who had been a hatchetman for the Republicans."

A State Dept. spokesman, John Trattner, said, "Ambassador Carlucci has been doing an outstanding job in an important and difficult post. He will remain in Lisbon as ambassador."

The administration is now looking for another person to fill the job which will be vacated when Richard Moose, the present undersecretary, belomes assistant secretary of state for African affairs.

149 poor welds found in pipeline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Dept. of Transportation, drawing expressions of dismay from one congressman, disclosed Thursday it found 149 substandard welds in a new examination of the Alaska pipeline but has ruled all of them are safe.

The new weld safety issue cropped up only days before oil was scheduled to start flowing through the 800-mile pipeline for the first time.

Transportation officials said a "very subjective" visual examination of X-rays showed 149 welds out of a sample of 1,500 were "cosmetically" below DOT standards. But they said more scientific analysis by an outside panel found the welds structurally sound.

REP. JOHN DINGELL, D-Mich., voiced dismay at the Transportation Department findings. Dingell and members of his staff said they favor a more thorough examination of the pipeline and warned against relaxation of any standard that insures safe operation of the line.

Dr. John Fearnsides, the department's expert on the weld situation, said in a telephone interview that the safety verdict by the outside panel of experts was received Wednesday.

On the basis of that report, Fearnsides said, the department expects to agree with a request from the builders of the pipeline that any further checks of welds be conducted using the more scientific "fracture mechanics analysis" rather than by physical examination of the welds themselves.

The Transportation Department's findings will be considered by the Interior Department in giving final approval for oil to start flowing through the line.

THE PIPELINE is scheduled to start carrying North Slope oil for the first time next week. A requirement for excavation and physical examination of any welds could force a delay in starting oil flowing.

A spokesman for Dingell said the lawmaker felt that Interior was "not even fully aware" of the questionable welds until this week. He said Dingell "noted the tone of defense" of the questionable welds that was shown by Fearnsides.

Fearnsides, howver, said "we would certainly disagree" with fears that a risk of pipeline failure was being brushed aside to avoid a delay in starting the oil flowing.

"We're perfectly willing to discuss our entire process of analyzing these things," he said. "The timing is unfortunate. But we just don't have any concerns about the structural integrity of that pipeline."

Fearnsides and other officials said apparent defects were found during a Coast Guard examination of X-rays of 1,500 out of the total 100,000 welds in the pipeline. Further analysis whittled the number of questionable welds down to 118, and the outside panel was asked to examine those X-rays.

"The welds appeared to be safe, but did not meet standards as cosmetically perfect welds," one DOT official said.

Singlaub doesn't regret remarks

TAIPEI, Tawiwan (UPI) — Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, fired by President Carter from his command of U.S. troops in South Korea, said Thursday he does not regret the prediction of a Communist attack that cost him his post.

Singlaub said he was looking forward to his next assignment as chief of staff of the U.S. Armed Forces, "but I'd rather stay in Korea."

Singlaub was relieved of his command last month two days after President Carter learned of the general's comments to reporters criticizing the administration's plans to withdraw U.S. troops from South Korea.

The 55-year-old Army officer said, "I think it is important for a military officer to state his opinions with his best judgment."

Hardy alternative to sod

Ground covers adapt to landscape needs

by TONY T. FULMER

An alternative to sod, ground covers provide handsome foliage, and often flowers, choke out weeds and adapt to a variety of growing conditions.

Ground cover includes any plant that grows to a maximum height of 18 inches and spreads horizontally, including certain annuals and perennials, as well as deciduous woody plants and evergreens.

ALMOST ALL ground covers will tolerate varying degrees of light. Purpleleaf Wintercreeper (Euonymus coloratus) reaches heights of 12 to 15 inches and should be spaced one foot apart on centers. The common name comes from the beautiful maroon-red color the leaves develop in the fall and retain throughout the winter. An effective soil binder, the stems will root at joint along the ground in moist soil.

Bigleaf Wintercreeper will grow as a vine or a free-standing shrub depending on pruning methods. As a ground cover, it is spaced 12 inches apart and pruned several times a year to the desired height. Given some winter shade it will remain ever green and may produce bright orange berries in the fall.

The popular ground cover Vinca minor is known as Myrtle. The six-inch tall evergreen ground cover, with glossy leaves and lilac-blue flowers in the spring, is available in many varieties.

Vinca minor is especially suited for deep shade and planting on banks to control soil erosion. Avoid the use of high-nitrogen fertilizers. Planting Vinca in poorly-drained soil will cause it to rot at the soil line. One nice landscaping technique is Vinca underplanted with spring flowering bulbs that will push through the foliage, flower and disappear into the green myrtle during summer.

Guest gardener

ONE OF THE most aggressive ground covers is Ajuga. Several forms of Ajuga include bronze, whose new growth takes on a reddish-purple cast when grown in partial sun; genevensis, green-leaved and very hardy; and the variegated, requiring semi-shade, whose leaves are a rich contrast of creamy white and silver-green. All Ajugas are herbaceous, growing to four-inches with six-inch royal blue flower spikes in May. A rapid grower, plants should be spaced eight to 12 inches apart. After flowering in the spring the plants look much better if the flower heads are removed.

Two ground covers that thrive in full sun are Crown Vetch and Polygonum (Fleeceflower). Crown vetch is a vine-like member of the Pea family that grows 1 to two feet tall and bears clusters of pinkish-white flowers from June through September. Spaced one foot apart on centers Crown Vetch will grow from underground stems making it an excellent soil binder on banks. It is particularly useful on poor, dry soils and often is grown along interstate highways where low maintenance is a must. Crown Vetch will tolerate light shade.

Fleeceflower thrives in hot, dry sites and is a very aggressive grower even under the most adverse situations. With medium-green foliage, reddish-pink stems, leaf veins and flowers, Polygonum should be spaced twelve inches apart on centers and will tolerate light shade.

'THORNDALE' English Ivy is a handsome evergreen vine that will cover soil or grow up rough-surfaced structures. The leaves are almost black-green and the plant reaches a height of four inches when used as ground cover. English Ivy should never be given continuous sun and requires a well-drained soil.

Pachysandra, or Japanese Spurge, is also evergreen, growing quickly to a uniform height of eight inches. The plant is a beautiful green and often produces white flowers in the spring. Spurge chokes out weeds, holds winter color well and will tolerate the deep shade of trees such as Norway Maple. the plants should be pinched back slightly in the spring to encourage fullness. Pachysandra prefers a slightly acid soil and should be planted eight inches apart.

Although ground covers offer a range of plant material and include plants that differ widely in cultural requirements, certain generalizations can be drawn regarding their care. Deeply work the soil prior to planting, preferably to a depth of eight inches, incorporating peat moss or dehydrated manure to the soil and mixing the components thoroughly. If the soil has a heavy clay content, adding sharp sand will improve aeration and drainage.

SINCE THE BEDS will remain undisturbed for years, it is important to remove all weeds and the roots of perennial grasses that will regenerate and compete with the ground covers.

Insert the plants in loose soil and adhere to the recommended spacing. At planting time, water thoroughly and thereafter when the soil is dry to a depth of several inches. Never allow the plant to go without water, especially the first year.

Weeding the area by hand is recommended rather than cultivating deeply as this disturbs the root system and newly-forming plantlets. Usually weeding is necessary the first year or two. Thereafter, the ground cover will have grown together and will tend to be self-weeding. An application of a complete fertilizer in the spring will improve the vigor of the plants. When using a granular fertilizer be sure to apply to dry foliage and then water thoroughly to prevent foliar burn.

GROUND COVERS adapt to bare areas of soil where many other plants would not. Low-maintenance, economical material, ground covers regulate foot traffic, prevent erosion and offer a versatile landscape element to unify and set off plantings with a professional finish.

LOVELY LOUVERED redwood fence can be built closed for privacy or partially open, like venetian blinds, for airflow. Economical, knot-containing redwood garden grades are recommended for most redwood fences. For fences around swimming pools and other "attractive nuisances," local building codes should be checked.

Train branching vines of cucumber plants

Most varieties of cucumbers have branching vines that will reach four to eight feet in length by midsummer. They take up a lot of space unless trained up frames, fences, or tepees made of poles says James E. Schuster, horticulturist at the University of Illinois Extension Service.

An even better way is to grow the cucumbers on a slanting frame covered with galvanized hog wire. This allows the heavy cucumbers to hang down on the inside. Cucumbers can be easily reached and picked.

SEED BREEDERS have introduced compact-vine hybrid cucumbers in recent years. Some of these will not grow vines more than 2½ feet long. These cucumbers are best suited for small gardens or containers.

In larger gardens, the more vigorous, wide spreading hybrids will bear more fruit over a longer period. Regardless of which type you plant, cucumbers will pay off because of the amount you can harvest from a given area.

CUCUMBERS COME in slicing or pickling types. You can pickle either type. The difference is that pickling cucumbers are short and blocky. They are good for pickling whole. The fruit of slicing cucumbers is lang and fatter. Because of this, they often have to be quartered or sliced for pickling and packing into the jars. Cucumbers that are to be pickled, should be picked before they begin to turn yellow.

Schuster pointed out that it is important to plant modern hybrids that are resistant to diseases such as mildew and virus. The very new hybrids have a higher ratio of female blossoms. This often results in greater yields.

Cucumbers should be grown in full sun on well-drained soil. Fertilize when planting. However, do not overfertilize. Too much fertilizer can stimulate leaf growth at the expense of fruit or in severe cases, the plants could be killed. Water as plants need it but when watering, try and keep foliage dry to reduce disease problems.

Geraniums remain colorful

Geraniums fit into nearly every garden situation, and they may be just what you've been looking for to add character and color to your flower garden from spring through fall said James E. Schuster, horticulturist at the University of Illinois Extension Service.

Geraniums can grow in full sun or in partially shaded areas. In fact, they'll do better in light shade. Geranium colors range from snow white, pink and salmon, to bright red, lending themselves to a wide variety of color arrangements."

Easy to grow, space plants about 12 inches apart in beds. Or group geraniums in clusters of three or four to accent other flower beds. Geraniums are also excellent container plants for window boxes, patio tubs and hanging baskets.

Plant in good, well-drained soil. In heavy soils, add coarse organic matter and coarse sand to loosen it up. The best soil mix is equal parts garden soil, coarse organic matter and coarse sand.

Water thoroughly after planting. Regular waterings should be heavy enough to soak the soil six inches deep. Avoid sprinkling plant foliage. A layer of mulch will hold down soil temperatures, preserve moisture, and control weeds.

Pool care now insures enjoyment

Most people with home swimming pools tend both to underrate the importance of timely pool care, and overrate the difficulty, according to swimming pool maintenance experts.

A key time for maintenance is now. Steps taken in the spring can save big trouble at the height of the summer.

A checklist of pre-season maintenance steps will help avoid costly repairs and dismaying downtime later on.

AFTER REMOVING protective winter covers from pool and equipment, sweep inside and surrounding areas clean of debris and dirt (if pool was drained). Then inspect exposed surfaces (walls, floors) for cracking. Also note if painting is needed.

Examine all valves, controls and pipes for deterioration. If repair is not required, fill pool.

Recheck valves, controls and pipes for leakage. Dried packings and gaskets on these devices may cause minor seepage that will stop as they absorb water and expand. If major leakage occurs, turn off water and call for professional help.

While pool is still filling, check filtration equipment for operational readiness. Before filter start-up, follow manufacturer's recommendations for oiling and cleaning.

START UP FILTER as prescribed by manufacturer.

Most home and commercial pool filters (the diatomite or diatomaceous type) call for proper precoating with a filter aid capable of removing impurities of extremely small particle size. Precoating is performed by circulating a mixture of diatomite and water into the filter to provide a 1/16-inch thick coating on the element. This will help assure clean, clear water, as well as efficient filtration.

The diatomite filter aid should also be placed into the filter's body feed. Not all pool filters have a body feed. In those that do, the device adds small amounts of diatomite during filtration to separate debris and prevent it from clogging the precoat layer.

As the pool continues to fill, the water may take on a cloudy appearance — though, fit for drinking; toward end of the first 24-hour filtration cycle it will begin to sparkle. Subsequently, the filter should be run so water is completely filtered every 18 to 24 hours.

FINALLY, CHLORINATION and addition of other chemicals to the water should be accomplished before the pool is used.

Cleaning is recommended every three to 10 days. Water skimming and vacuuming help insure efficient filter operation and clean water.

South conquers trump lead

The trump lead made it impossible for South to ruff two hearts in dummy. Each card was wrong in the side suits, yet South found a play for his contract in spite of the bludgeonings of chance.

He won the lead in dummy, cashed the ace and king of hearts, ruffed a heart, drew trumps, led his last heart to catch East in an end play at trick seven.

East had done his best to avoid this by throwing the eight of clubs on the third trump lead so as to keep that fifth heart in his hand, but this did him no good at all. When East led that fifth heart, South just chucked his singleton club.

Now if East led a diamond, South would lose just one diamond trick. If he led a club it would set up dummy's king and again South would lose just one diamond trick. Either way, South was sure of 10 tricks.

Ask Andy

20-20 vision sign of good, normal eyesight

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Eugene DeVincenzo, 11, of North Lima, Ohio, for his question:

WHAT DOES 20-20 EYESIGHT MEAN?

Perhaps the most common eye test used by doctors who check your vision is one that uses a poster called an E chart. The chart, which can be of massive wall-size or just a hand-held card, has the letter E printed in many different sizes and various positions.

Doctors consider the test an excellent one because it can be given by a nurse or office assistant with little training. It also involves just the one simple character, rather than lots of letters so even young children or those who are illiterate have few problems in passing on their answers.

The E chart, or the alphabet eye chart, is used in many schools for mass screenings since elaborate equipment is not needed. If a child does not do well on this test, further examinations can be scheduled.

Eye tests are given at different distances but the results are given on the basis of a chart 20 feet from the viewer. A person over the age of 5 years is classed as having normal vision if his rating is 20-20. This means, simply, that the viewer can read a relatively small line of letters (or tell the direction in which the letter E is printed) at 20 feet, which the normal eye should be able to see at that distance. The first number on the rating is the distance, with the second number being the normal — so that a rating of 20-40 means a person can read at 20 feet the letters a normal adult eye should see at 40 feet.

Tests are first made with one eye covered, and then the other. It is possible, therefore, to find that a person has 20-30 vision in the right eye and 20-20 in the left. With this type of situation, a person would probably need eyeglasses with a magnification lens only for the right eye, with plain glass used for the left.

Improper refraction is the reason many persons must wear eyeglasses. If the eyes are not able to refract and focus light properly, it is usually the result of inherited tendencies. One type of improper refraction is called myopia, or nearsightedness. Another is called hyperopia, or farsightedness. If a person has refraction problems with his eyes, chances are it will first be spotted by the doctor who reads the results of an E chart eye test.

Andy sends a Denoyer-Geppert World Globe to Nancy DeGiuli, 13, of Niagara Falls, Ontario, Canada, for her question:

WHEN WAS THE FIRST ENGLISH WORD SPOKEN?

Before 450 A.D., those living in the area we now call England spoke the tongue of old Celtic tribes, the Gaels and the Britons. Some Latin was also spoken, brought to the area by the Romans in 54 B.C.

In the fifth century, Germanic tribes from along the North Sea began to invade England. The dialects they spoke became the dialects of Old English — and this, it can be said, was the start of the English language. English was closely related to Frisian, a language spoken in the north of Holland, that was also a Low German dialect — that is, a language spoken by the Germanic people who live in the lowland areas of northern Europe.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60008. Entries are open to boys and girls 7 to 17.
